NO. 17 BY RUSSIANS 'SEVERAL MEGATONS'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union fired a big nuclear explosion today, described by the United States Atomic Energy Commission as "on the order of several megatons."

A megaton is the equivalent of 1,000,000 tons of TNT.

Collapse of UN Predicted If Red China Granted Seat

Soviets Snub Chiang Envoy

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Nationalist China warned today that the United Nations will be wrecked if it bows to demands of "international bullies" and admits countries disqualified by the spirit and letter of the UN charter.

The warning came from Foreign Minister Shen Chang-huan, who told the 100-nation General Assembly "appeasement is very much in the air." He did not mention Red China specifically, but the question of seating Red China is on the agenda for debate later in the current session.

As in other recent assembly sessions, all delegates of the Soviet bloc countries left the chamber during the speech of the Nationalist Chinese official.

LIBERATION STILL AIM

Shen repeated Nationalist China's promise to liberate the Chinese mainland "if the opportunity presents itself." The Chiang Kai-shek government now rules only Formosa.

Shen asserted the UN is "in danger of being perverted to serve the interest of powerful war-makers and international bullies."

"There are delegations in this assembly," he said, "who are bent on strengthening the forces of evil by adding to United Nations membership those who are clearly not qualified by the spirit and letter of the charter... if they are allowed to have their way, then the era of collective aggression, not of collective security, is upon us."

"Unless the majority of the state members accept the reality of the danger and unite their efforts to meet it, the United Nations is destined to go the way of the League of Nations."

SOVIET CREATION

Shen told the assembly the Berlin crisis is a deliberate Soviet creation and declared that in Asia both Laos and South Viet Nam are menaced by communism.

He also accused the Soviet Union of trying to undermine the UN by the troika plan to replace the office of secretary-general with a three-man directorate.

"On an issue involving the very existence of the United Nations," he said, "there can be no neutralists or bystanders."

He said the Communists have no more love for neutralism than they have for capitalism, but that they are encouraging it in the hope of turning it to their advantage.

Mars Canals Made by Man?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A research chemist said today the canals of Mars are so like a man-made rail network and so unlike ordinary geological cracks they raise the possibility the planet may be inhabited.

The chemist, Wells Alan Webb of Berkeley, Calif., said that because the canals raise the possibility of a prior civilization, any attempt to send manned expeditions to Mars should be preceded by unmanned probes that could "prove a reaction" and detect any form of intelligent life that may exist.

ORDERED BACK to Washington today, U.S. ambassador to Russia Llewellyn Thompson is expected to be an added adviser in the preliminary Soviet-American talks between American State Secretary Rusk and Foreign Minister Gromyko or Russia. He'll also be on hand when President Kennedy meets Gromyko Friday.

Talk Set For JFK, Gromyko

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko will meet here late Friday afternoon for a crucial talk that may determine whether negotiations over Berlin are possible.

The White House announced today that the president and Gromyko will confer at 5 p.m. EDT (1 p.m. PST) Friday.

The talk was set up as a result of encouraging progress made in three earlier discussions between Gromyko and Secretary of State Dean Rusk in New York last week.

Although White House press secretary Pierre Salinger refused to discuss the subject matter of the Friday conference, it obviously concerned the Berlin negotiations, and the next steps to be taken by both sides.

Gromyko and Rusk had planned to meet a fourth time in Washington—but Salinger said he did not know whether this would occur before the conference with Kennedy.

Salinger would not say whether the Soviet or American side initiated the White House meeting.

U.S. officials regard the meeting as crucial—but not in terms of whether concrete decisions will be reached. These are not expected.

The importance of the meeting will lie in the reactions which follow.

It probably will be the last of Gromyko's meetings with U.S. officials before he returns to Moscow this weekend to report to Premier Khrushchev on the American position.

'IT'S A-OKAY' —THIS TIME!

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Astronaut Gus Grissom was stopped by policeman Elliott Davis, who said Grissom was driving 45 miles an hour in a 40 m.p.h. zone.

"I'm terribly sorry, officer, I don't usually go this fast," said the man who travelled 5,280 m.p.h. in a rocket.

The patrolman then took a closer look at Grissom's smiling companion. It was Alan Shepard Jr., the first U.S. space traveller.

They got off with a warning. The incident occurred last week.

ON EAST GERMAN TREATY

Ease-Up Hint By Russians

LONDON (UPI)—Communist diplomats hinted today that Russia might postpone the signing of its threatened separate peace with East Germany if the West agreed to negotiate a speedy Berlin settlement.

Russia still intends to sign such a peace treaty, but the move could be deferred if negotiations for a Berlin accord were held soon and not dragged out indefinitely.

Or, they said, Moscow might sign the treaty this year as threatened with the understanding that it would be amended to include agreement on Berlin.

Such an understanding would be conditional on an East-West accord to start full-scale negotiations soon.

SECOND THOUGHTS

These vague hints were an indication that Moscow might not stick to its December deadline for a treaty with the East German regime, western diplomatic sources said.

The final decision probably would be determined by whether or not the next few weeks produce an East-West understanding to negotiate the Berlin conflict.

But in no case does Moscow appear willing to defer the signature of the projected treaty for more than a few months.

The Russians appeared determined to keep any negotiations short, but continuance of any such talks into 1962 seemed to be acceptable in principle, judging by the hints here today.

Premier Nikita Khrushchev intends to announce to the Moscow Party Congress opening Oct. 17 the outcome of the current East-West exploratory effort and a possible date for negotiations—if agreement is reached in time, the sources hinted.

No indication was given, however, that Russia was prepared to modify its stand on the Berlin issue.

Injured Boy Lifted From Cave

RISING FAWN, Ga. (AP)—An injured teen-age boy was lifted by stretcher from a crevasse in a mountain cave today after lying semi-conscious about nine hours on a ledge about 50 feet below the cave's floor.

He was taken to hospital after rescue workers spent a gruelling two hours getting him out of the narrow cave. His condition did not appear critical.

The boy, 15-year-old Ronnie Reese, was on a ledge halfway down a 100-foot crevasse where he fell shortly after dark Tuesday while exploring the cave with three other youths.

Rescue operations were hampered by loose rocks, some several feet in diameter, around the top of the crevasse. Workers feared that the slightest nudge might send the rocks crashing down onto the injured boy.

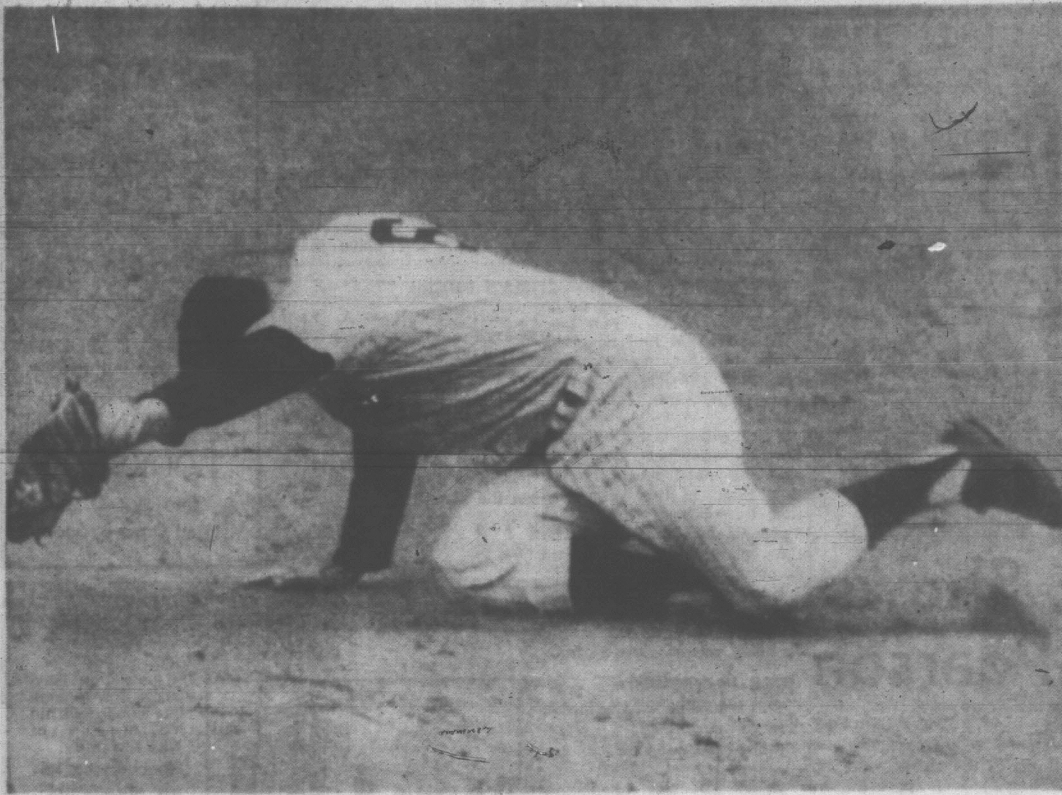

The crevasse where he fell is about half a mile from the opening of the cave. Workers had to inch their way across another deep pit to reach the scene.

BY OSCAR FRALEY
NEW YORK (UPI)—Stubby Whitey Ford's record-setting pitching and the most thunderous home run bats in baseball history swept the New York Yankees to a 2-0 triumph over the Cincinnati Reds in the opening game of the World Series today.

The bludgeons which bashed an all-time high of 240 home runs this year roared the Yankee victory tune when Elston Howard clipped a fourth-inning clout into the lower right-field stands and Moose Skowron lofted a towering shot into the left-field stands in the sixth inning.

Nasser 'Octopus' Blamed by Syria

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—President Nasser's agents moved "like an octopus" to weaken the Syrian army, suffocate freedom of citizens and to fill prisons," says the new Syrian army commander.

Gen. Abdel Karim Zahredin told reporters Tuesday that was the reason the Syrian army rose against Nasser's United Arab Republic last week and forcibly severed Syria's 3½-year-old ties with Egypt.

Zahredin also accused Cairo agents of stealing millions of pounds worth of Syrian arms and equipment for shipment to Egypt.

FILLED PRISONS

He said Nasser's intelligence officers filled Syria's prisons with political prisoners and stifled individual liberties.

"The army's only aim was to redress wrongs and it was pledged not to interfere with the political life of Syria," he said.

Informed sources said that one way Nasser weakened the Syrian army was to send several dozen Syrian officers to Communist countries as students. They said the action was aimed at preventing such an uprising as that which occurred and that Syria now has demanded their prompt return.

CAPTURE PRISONERS

Interior Minister Adnan Kuwatly told newspapermen the new Syrian regime had found a large number of political prisoners but had been unable to come up with an accurate count. Premier Maoun Kuzbari estimated the number at about 30,000 Tuesday.

Kuwatly said the dreaded internal security system at one time had about 6,500 secret agents with a monthly payroll of about $1,000,000 Syrian ($2,800,000).

Syria will continue its ban on the Communist party, Kuwatly said, adding that "we will leave the question of political parties to Parliament."

48 Nkrumah Foes Arrested

AFTER 29 YEARS, 130,353 miles, and a wealth of happiness, J. R. Scott, of 437 Arnold, finally traded his 1932 Ford for a newer model on Monday. Mr. Scott, who has owned only three cars since 1918, said that he drives about 1,000 miles a year and therefore doesn't need the strong and reliable old car anymore. "One of these lighter new models will suit me fine; let someone else have the benefit of my grand old Ford." In 29 years of use, Mr. Scott says his "old boy" never needed a major overhaul.

Hopes Rise for Plan To Select UN Leader

PRIVATE MEETING with President de Gaulle was scheduled today for Premier Lesage of Quebec on first official visit to France by the head of a Canadian provincial government. Main object in visit is to inaugurate special representation for Quebec in Paris.

CBC Loans Two Men To Ghana

OTTAWA (UPI) — A two-man team of Canadian broadcasters has been loaned to the government of Ghana to advise that country on the technical and programming aspects of television, the CBC announced today. Seconded under the special commonwealth African air program were C. W. Harvison, son of the RCMP commissioner, and Frank Goodship. Harvison will advise on technical matters and Goodship on programming. Harvison, 34-year-old native of Montreal, already is in Ghana. Goodship, 35, a native of Revelstoke, B.C., is en route.

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Prospects appeared a little brighter today for East-West agreement on naming a United Nations secretary-general.

Informed American sources expressed guarded optimism that a formula might be announced—perhaps when Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko meets U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk in Washington later this week.

Soviet delegates were giving the impression that their only demand on the naming of a temporary successor to Hammarskjöld is that he be screened by the Security Council, where Russia holds the veto power.

But if the selection is left to the General Assembly alone, as advocated by some Western nations, the Soviet Union will refuse to recognize the new secretary-general "even if he were a Russian," one high Soviet source said. There is no veto in the General Assembly.

FIVE DEPUTIES

Latest speculation centred on a plan to name an acting secretary-general with five deputies. Two would come from the Soviet Union and the United States, the other three from Latin America, Asia and Africa.

There was no indication whether such a plan would be acceptable to the Russians, who have proposed naming a secretary-general to work with three deputies representing East-West and neutrals.

The Russians are telling other delegations that this formula is a far-reaching compromise and that they have dropped the idea that the deputies would exercise any veto over the actions of the temporary secretary-general.

WELLINGTON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Keith Holyoake announced today that John Stanhope Reid, ambassador to Japan, will succeed Foss Shanahan as New Zealand's high commissioner in Canada.

Two Leaders Duck Roundup

ACCRA, Ghana (Reuters) — Dozens of opponents of President Kwame Nkrumah were under arrest today following allegations by the government of a plot to assassinate Nkrumah and some members of his cabinet.

A government statement listed 48 persons who were in custody, but opposition United Party leaders J. B. Danquah and Obetsebi Lamptey escaped the roundup and were being sought.

Among those arrested was 38-year-old lawyer Joe Appiah, deputy leader of the parliamentary opposition since 1958. He is married to Peggy Cripps, daughter of the late British Labor chancellor of the exchequer, Sir Stafford Cripps.

Other well-known names among those arrested included Kwame Kesse, city editor of the Ashanti Pioneer, a newspaper opposing Nkrumah, and P. K. Quaidoo, once an Nkrumah minister and now an outspoken parliamentary opponent of the government.

EDITOR ARRESTED

A. P. Appiah, former editor of The Ashanti Pioneer, also was arrested.

A government statement referred to "clandestine and dangerous activities of certain individuals" calculated to "subvert and endanger the security of the state."

The statement said the acts included "violence, secret meetings, the taking of oaths to assassinate the president and certain members of the government, strikes, sabotage and fire."

"These are all designed to effect the violent overthrow of the lawfully constituted government," the statement added.

The list of detainees included the names of 28 persons, mostly railway workers, from the twin ports of Takoradi and Sekondi, where an 18-day strike recently paralyzed Ghana's shipping and rail facilities.

The arrests brought to almost 300 the number of Nkrumah opponents who are being held.

Few Schools Using Press

VANCOUVER (CP) — The press is a valuable means of communication that is being neglected by many school boards in British Columbia, says the president of the B.C. School Trustees Association.

A. M. Harvey, addressing the B.C. School Trustees Association convention here Monday, said that in visits to boards around the province he was surprised at how little they made use of local newspapers in attempting to create interest in school problems.

N.Z. Government Divided, May Fall on Death Penalty

WELLINGTON (Reuters) — New Zealand's National Party government, which has a majority of 12 in the House of Representatives, today faced possible defeat over a move to introduce the death penalty for "aggravated murder."

Several government members, including Attorney-General Ralph Hanan, have said they will vote against the clause in the crimes bill which imposes capital punishment for "planned and deliberate" murders committed in association with another crime.

Hanan told Parliament today during the second reading of the bill: "Let us follow the lead given by other advanced communities and bring to an end a punishment which so many of our people are convinced belongs to other days and times."

Capital punishment was abolished in New Zealand in 1941, reintroduced by the National government in 1950, suspended by the Labor government in 1957, and abolished in 1959 following a referendum.

Where Is Our Cheap Power?

THE MOST VALID REASON for nationalization of public utilities is that it will enable consumers to obtain the product or the service at the lowest possible cost. The expectation of lower hydro rates was the chief reason for the public's ready acceptance of Mr. Bennett's take-over of the B.C. Electric. What is now happening to our rates?

Instead of an early reduction in charges for electricity as a result of the savings to be made through public ownership, we are told by Dr. Gordon Shrum, the head of the new hydro complex, that we must wait for several years. We must wait, he says, until the economy picks up, probably "by 1963."

Surely this is a curious remark. What has the "economic curve"—to use his phrase—got to do with the production costs of our hydro power and thus with the price we should pay for it? It is true that a plant operating far below capacity would have higher unit charges for its output than a plant in full operation. But we have been given to understand that the province's available power plants are going full blast and that we are threatened with an early shortage of power. This, we have been told, is the reason for the haste to get the Peace River into production. So the reason back of Dr. Shrum's remark cannot be that the existing plants are not fully utilized.

What lies behind his answer? What does the government intend to do with the $44 millions left in the BCE coffers as a reserve for taxes which will not now, under public ownership, have to be paid? What will happen to the savings in operational costs—estimated as high as 17 per cent—that will result from public ownership of the BCE?

Does the government intend to use these added funds to help finance its adventure in the Peace River instead of turning them over to the consumers? And does Dr. Shrum's estimate of an expedient time (1963) to reduce electricity costs coincide with the time when Mr. Bennett will be getting ready to call an election?

Dr. Shrum has thrown an "economic curve." Will the public strike out on it?

Is Full Protection Possible?

CANADIANS HAVE BEEN told that 1961 forest fires in Canada covered a total area greater than ever before on record—more than 7,600,000 acres, according to current estimates.

This is a big figure which may not convey much to the average man. Converted into local terms, it means that fires burned over the equivalent of the whole of Vancouver Island.

What this represents in dollars-and-cents loss may never be accurately computed. A tree worth a certain amount per board foot standing in the forest has its value multiplied many times before it reaches the ultimate consumer in a product originating in wood.

Even without a dollar figure, the heavy fire loss this year should create particular concern for the Resources for Tomorrow conference opening later this month in Ottawa. What forest resources—one of our greatest—reside in 7,600,000 acres of charred snags and ash?

If there are going to be any forest resources for tomorrow, Canada and the respective provinces will have to do a great deal better than they did this year in preserving the growing asset.

That brings the issue down to a simple practical question: can this country take effective action to protect the woods from fire?

Forestry officials say they can. The one essential they need is more money. If it is not provided, then losses will continue to inflict serious blows on the Canadian economy.

In British Columbia this year, two fires in the Prince George area, one at Grove and one at Tsus, cost a million dollars in lost timber and fire-fighting. Had adequate equipment, water bombers and a helicopter, been standing by at the right time, forestry officials believe the fires could have been caught before they blew out of control.

The costs of such stand-by service runs perhaps to $2,000 a month—$2,000 to save $1,000,000.

These are not extreme cases. According to analyses made by the forest service, 7 per cent of our provincial fires impose on the province about 80 per cent of the total loss, including fire-fighting costs.

Plans for stand-by service are hampered by lack of funds.

The suggestion has been made that armed service personnel could handle the fire-fighting job. This, unfortunately, is a suggestion that the barn door be locked after the horse has escaped.

The vital point in cutting down fire loss is to catch the blaze in its infancy, before it can grow to serious proportions. A cup of water will put out the match that starts a forest fire; nothing short of the winter's deluge will extinguish some which have got away.

Hence, if the services are to be used for fire-fighting when forest fires reach a status approaching a national disaster, the treatment is too late. The damage has been done.

In the last four years, 1958 to 1961 inclusive, the provincial government has spent $29,249,000 on forest protection work, administration and fire-fighting costs. Industry has spent another $5,474,000 to protect timber stands and fight fire.

The federal government, in the same period, has laid out $738,000 only for the same purposes.

When the late Chief Justice Gordon Sloan prepared his 1956 royal commission report on British Columbia's forest industries, he drew pointed reference to the federal payments. They were, he said, "not overly generous." They still are not overly generous.

That is a point which the Resources for Tomorrow conference might study. If there are to be forestry resources for tomorrow, money is needed to supplement funds already spent in the provinces to protect the asset.

The situation this year has caused one immediately important qualification of our use of resources in British Columbia. This province bases its hope for forest resources tomorrow on a sustained yield policy. That means that only a certain amount of timber can be harvested in one year. When vast blocks of timber go up in smoke, not only is wealth destroyed, the allowable cut of commercial interests in the area has to be reduced to establish a sustained yield balance.

When the cut is reduced, of course, there is less converted timber from which the federal government can receive its substantial share of revenue.

The $2 Million Disappointment

A PICTORIAL FEATURE IN The Times earlier this week reveals that the view of downtown Victoria from the roof of the new Law Courts building is impressive. It is a pity that the reverse is not true.

If the new structure proves anything, it is this: that the mere expenditure of some $2 millions of public money is not in itself enough to guarantee an aesthetically attractive building. Without grace or style, this stolid, square mass of brick has been unfolded to the public gaze as a sort of gigantic comfort station.

The Department of Public Works has shown reasonable competence in the construction of roads, bridges and other functional amenities. But the building of a noble civic structure, which might have been an ornament of the Cathedral Hill complex is clearly beyond its powers. This important job should have been left to the private architects, who could have imparted to the new building that sense of taste and imaginative design which is so sorely missing.

An Epitaph for Bing

MR. HARRY LEBLIS (BING) Crosby has announced in England, where he is making a movie, that he has decided on his own epitaph: "An average guy who could carry a tune."

In an industry, famous for its bombast and insincerity, Bing has managed to keep a level head and a sense of balance. His contribution to the happiness of a largely unhappy world has been great. As a wandering troubador he is without equal. The public's assessment of him, therefore, will be much higher than his own.

The Sickness of Our Time

ONE phenomenon which may interest sociologists or psychologists of the future could well be the urge to excess which is so prevalent in our age.

Many a student in times to come may try to understand what it was that drove the human beings of this century to seize upon various "crazes" from time to time and indulge in them to a point far beyond normal, healthy interest. Dating by 13 and 14-year-olds, for instance, while expected in some couples here and there, became an over-riding fashion in some parts of the United States and Canada resulting in a full-time obsession by school children. The practice became as exaggerated and as inexplicable as the "dancing fever" of the Middle Ages—a manifestation far beyond normal human behavior.

What drives today's folk to wring the last ultimate drop out of a lad or a pastime? It seems to be more than mere escapism—rather a desire for extremity for its own sake.

One of the most obvious examples of this is the current craze in Britain for bingo. The simple gambling device, requiring only the ability to read figures up to 99, has apparently swept the country and become a disease with many of its devotees.

Too Busy

A recent report that war had broken out—erroneous but believed true at the time—found only half a dozen bingo players out of a couple of hundred willing to leave their game in a London bingo hall. To the operator's amazement they were impatient to continue trying to get five numbers in a row, come hell or high missiles.

English seaside resorts found this year that many holidaymakers, who normally would spend their days on the beach, sailing in the boats or resting in deck chairs, preferred to sit all day in dim halls, their eyes glued to the bingo boards in their laps.

One elderly lady, queried as to why she spent from 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. every day playing the game, said she liked "the feeling of being all together."

London mothers have neglected their children, gambled away all their house-keeping money, lost contact with the world, in their hypnotic urge to spend every possible hour at the game.

Could other ages match such demonstrations? Perhaps the gin mills depicted by Hogarth, or the benches around the Revolution's guillotine in Paris, or some similar social cancer provide the only comparisons.

Ours is, of course, an age of mass gatherings, just as the Roman age with its circuses was. The many thousands who pour into grandstands—whether to see Cup soccer or World Series or auto racing or a score of other exhibitions—no doubt do so to satisfy their gregarious instinct as well as to enjoy their sport spectacle. But would a soccer fan sit in the stands day and night, day after day? Could World Series fever last much more than a couple of weeks a year at its highest pitch?

Flight From Self

One might suppose that the London housewives are escaping in the only way they know from the weight of nuclear worry, the burden of financial or domestic sorrows, the strain of threatened global warfare. But this is apparently not the case. The enemy they say seek to escape is boredom—the daily routine of housekeeping or the horror of having to spend hours by themselves with only their own thoughts to keep them company.

But having got a taste of escape through an hour or two of bingo, they cannot let it go at that. The hour or two becomes a whole afternoon, an evening, a day.

It is not to be thought that everyone seeks this outlet, of course. The vast majority of people would be above such abject surrender to an obsession. Spend their time at bingo and miss their favorite TV show? Ridiculous!

Both Doctors and Dentists Agree

The American Dental Association

fluoridation of communal water supplies as a highly desirable health measure. "As you know," Dr. Blasingame explained, "the American Medical Association believes that fluoridation of public water supplies is a safe and practical method of reducing the incidence of dental caries from childhood into adulthood."

In a telegram to Dr. Rulon W. Openshaw of Los Angeles, chairman of the American Dental Association's Council on Dental Health, during the Council's recent 12th National Dental Health Conference, F. J. L. Blasingame, M.D., executive vice-president of AMA, said, "We are gratified that the theme of your program, 'Action Programs in Dental Health,' will be implemented by a major discussion of the need for public understanding and acceptance of fluoridation of communal water supplies as a highly desirable health measure."

"We join you in urging the American people to accept fluoridation as a prophylactic measure for reducing tooth decay in communities where their water supply contains less than the equivalent of 1 ppm of fluoride. We are happy to offer you our assistance in developing community understanding of fluoridation as a significant contribution toward better health care."

When the Passions Cool

THE room was small, cheaply white-washed, and up three flights of rickety stairs, which smelled of garbage. But the room's occupant, Akram Hourani, leader of the Baath party of Syria, master of the mob in Damascus, made his visitor forget his surroundings. He was fervent, electric, menacing, half-convincing, and altogether impressive. That was before Hourani and his ally, the master of the Syrian secret police, Col. Abdel Hamid Serraj, had organized their coup that handed Syria over to Egypt's Gamal Abdel Nasser.

The next time this correspondent saw Akram Hourani was just after the now-disrupted union of Syria with Egypt. On this occasion the room was vast, cavernous, and richly decorated, as befitted the office of the new vice-president of the newly united Arab Republic.

But in his new office in one of the old palaces in Cairo, Akram Hourani was pale, uneasy, oddly shrunken, and about as impressive as a disappointed rug peddler.

Into Obscurity

The former master of the Damascus mob had ceased to be master of anything at all in Cairo, where his ex-hero, Nasser, was the absolute ruler and dictator. For this very reason, not really long after this second meeting, Hourani angrily departed from the vice-presidency of the U.A.R. and retreated into total obscurity in a Syrian provincial town.

At a much later date, the story of Hourani also became the story of Abdel Hamid Serraj. From the moment of the union of Syria with Egypt, Nasser trusted no Syrian with any authority whatever, in Syria or elsewhere, except the hard-faced Syrian police chief.

Then, not long ago, he ceased to trust Serraj. And when Serraj went, and Syria was fully ruled by Egyptian interlopers, the time was ripe for the explosion which has now occurred.

It is important to understand the background of the Syrian revolt against Nasser, because this revolt is an enormously significant event. It is nothing less, in truth, than the first serious pointer towards the next phase of the nationalistic revolution: that has been going on all over the world.

With only one or two partial exceptions like India, this nationalistic revolution has had much the same basic characteristics in all the countries which it has engulfed and liberated. There is always the same nationalist propaganda, high-sounding, but ultimately reducible to the slogan, "Kick the dirty foreigners out!"

There is always a "charismatic leader," as the high-thinkers phrase it, meaning one who leads by stirring the emotions and fanning the passions of his followers. And there are always the same mobs, gripped by the same paroxysms of passion fanned by the leader.

Such a leader Nasser was, and is; and there is little doubt that he is one of the ablest leaders of this type.

Same Difficulty

All of these leaders must ultimately face the same difficulty which has now overtaken Nasser. The difficulty is that when the dirty foreigners have been kicked out, there is no one left to blame for anything that goes wrong except the leader himself.

The paroxysms of passion diminish as the years go by. The mobs that writhed and howled instead begin to think, in particular, about what the leader has done and is doing for them.

This is the critical moment. The critical moment came unusually rapidly in Syria, because Nasser, being a suspicious authoritarian, like almost all such leaders, insisted on using his Egyptians to rule his added province overseas.

At the first meeting already described, Akram Hourani positively screamed with indignation at "the insult to Arab unity," because the reporter had suggested that there were differences between Syrians and Egyptians. But the differences were and are very real.

Bitter Resentment

The Syrians bitterly resented their new masters, as foreigners though Arabs, and they also thought poorly of Nasser's practical performance in their behalf.

All the same, Syria is only in part a special case. At home in Egypt, too, Nasser's problems have been accumulating alarmingly. Here, too, the emotions have been growing more tepid, and the cold processes of thought have begun to be used again. Furthermore, Nasser's problems in Egypt will be vastly intensified by the sudden failure of his charisma in Syria.

The trouble is that kicking out the dirty foreigners does not help much to reduce the birthrate, or increase individual well-being, or organize a new, well-rooted mode of national life.

As Our Readers See It

No Red Carpet

Recently the Communist Party sent a protest asking disciplinary action against a Royal Canadian Mounted Police officer in Nova Scotia who had criticized this organization.

May I point out that this organization is the offspring of a foreign power whose declared object is the overthrow of this and all other governments by force.

In this so-called free country these organizations make it their business to claim all the freedoms while doing their best to tear down the country they should owe allegiance to.

I think it is about time that our enemies should not be given the red carpet treatment.

Even in the zoo the snakes are not allowed to bite the hand that feeds them.

Not Balancing Nature

In a recent issue of your paper a letter signed by the nom de plume of "Zealous Nimrod" pleads the case of the hunters by comparing their heroic exploits in the great out of doors to the killing of animals in a slaughter house. This is the perennial argument of the hunters, which is becoming exceedingly shopworn and much less effective since the Humane Slaughter Bill was passed in Canada. The only new angle introduced by "Zealous Nimrod" was that his letter was not directed mainly against "cranks" but also included "selfish land barons."

The premise that the hunters perform a useful service in controlling the balance of nature is not in accordance with the facts as supplied by the authorities who have studied the problem, and nothing excuses the wanton killing of and the suffering inflicted upon the animals by hunters who are rarely expert marksmen.

Mistrust

The recent uprising in Syria proves that the Arabs are finally waking up to the fact that President Nasser is not their high and mighty liberator after all.

Having lived in the Middle East and mingled with Arabs for over 15 years, I understand why these people who always belonged to a suppressed and inferior community are filled with a mistaken enthusiasm whenever a public figure promises glory. Nevertheless, their frustration is usually overcome by the main Arab characteristic: Mistrust (one Arab who can trust another is seldom found).

Mighty Nasser who gained illegal honor and prestige after the Suez crisis and now schemes for Arab and African leadership is facing a series of well-deserved flops.

Jamaica Picture

The report in yours of the 21st inst. of an address given by Miss Ethel Bruce to the University Women's Club of Victoria is both timely and true though there is one point which needs clarification.

About the "selfish" motive, a glance at the federal history of Jamaica will show that, as far back as 1947 when the first federal conference was held in Montego Bay, both political parties agreed on Jamaica joining the Federation, the Jamaica Labor Party then forming the Government and the People's National Party, the Opposition.

At the inauguration of the Federation, Jamaica's acceptance of the constitution was ratified by a unanimous vote in favor of the House of Representatives from both the P.N.P. now forming the Government, and the J.L.P. the Opposition.

Two years ago, at the last general election, the J.L.P. came out against federation as one of the planks of its platform, the objection being the cost to Jamaica.

The P.N.P. again controlled the government, but the J.L.P. continued to campaign anti-federation, which ended in a negative vote in the referendum.

The J.L.P. could have been "selfish" in seeking the hope of its return to power over the nationhood of the West Indies as a whole.

The point I would try to clear up is the question of housing and bedding. There may be a few people of no fixed address. However, at some time they all enjoyed a roof though, in many cases to a great extent, inadequate. It would not be correct to say that the humblest of housing was never extended to many. Those that may be seen unhoused are generally the wayward.

Furniture in these shacks is hopelessly poor. Yet in many cases there is in them a radio and sewing machine, the former for entertainment and information; the latter as a means of livelihood. This agrees with Miss Bruce as she observed more listening and less reading.

I speak as a Jamaican who has just migrated to your vast Dominion and made my home here in your charming Victoria.

You are to be complimented for your news item of the 20th on the result of the ballot along with the picture of Mr. Manley.

Against Working Man

When Douglas Fisher, CCF MP, told the Commonwealth parliamentary conference that, "In the first place those of us in opposition have no desire to embarrass the Canadian government by talking about the (European) Common Market problem," he was only demonstrating once again that the CCF is unalterably opposed to the interests of the working man.

How the worker is supposed to have ownership in the country when 60 per cent of the whole population had an average consumer debt of $2,780 each last year (Dominion Bureau of Statistics) is more than the CCF or any other major party can explain.

Keep Mungo Here

As regards the suggested plan to have the 81-year-old Indian Chief Mungo Martin go to New York to work on a totem pole for next year's Centennial Exhibition at Seattle, I consider it both unwise and unnecessary for after all, the idea is only a publicity stunt to boost up the Seattle show and should be turned down flat.

If it is desirable to have the totem pole sent to the Seattle show—the work on it can be done here in Victoria and sent over to Seattle in due course.

Furthermore, Chief Mungo Martin is not a young man anymore and should not be asked to go far away from his family.

Born, But Not Equal

THERE must be a lot of us in this community who would like to thank Dean S. N. F. Chant for saying out loud what we believe and consider to be a vital principle in our educational system.

Talking to the B.C. School Trustees' Association the other day, the chairman of the recent Royal Commission on Education noted that:

"Sentimentality tends to becloud issues and to blind one to the facts of life. One misconception that has stemmed from it is the belief that all children are equal. In fact it seems at times that educationists would even deceive the children into believing that they are equal."

He says that different children need different types of education to exploit their potentialities—which are uneven in most classrooms.

One of our weaknesses, it seems to me, has been an inclination to gloss over the limitations of some youngsters. We do this by a little too much emphasis on judging the child academically against his own abilities.

There's nothing wrong with this procedure within reason. A child should measure up to his capacities. His progress should be judged, in part, against his native ability. But, even granting him an A for effort, we shouldn't lose sight of the fact that effort, by itself, isn't enough. Performance counts too. And performance, in the competitive world we inhabit, must be judged against the performance of others. That's where the inequalities show up. If the youngster doesn't appreciate his limitations, he's due for a rude awakening when they are thrust upon him.

Perhaps an illustration from sport makes the point. Years ago, I used to attend the track meet of a school with an outstanding record in athletics. One of the young pupils had suffered from polio. He was no match for his classmates in the sprints. But, appreciating his limitations, he developed into the best boy in the sack race his school ever produced.

Somewhat the cheers for him seemed louder and happier as he beamed in victory after his specialty.

There are, of course, glorious examples of young people rising above their deficiencies. Wilma Rudolph, whose magnificent running was a brilliant feature of the Rome Olympics, could scarcely have expected to reach gold medal standards in track when she was a polio victim and had to overcome the handicap of weakened legs. And in Canadian track and field, the example of a young lady who beat the same crippling ailment to become the nation's best girl high jumper shows what determination can do.

In each of these cases, though, there must have been an initial appreciation of limitations. Some inherent, and developed, greater ability triumphed over the defects.

They do not disprove the case presented by Dean Chant. He is saying that the capabilities of children differ in various fields and they should be recognized. In consequence of that recognition there should be forms of education which are suited for the capacities of the students.

Not everyone can be a Wilma Rudolph. But if there is an understanding of inequalities, it isn't necessary to be. A person who cannot win sprints can possibly be first class in the sack race. Or a person who cannot be a scientist because the mental equipment was not bestowed upon him might be a pretty competent mechanic or technician.

The irritation and tragedy occur when the youngster, unaware that he hasn't the equipment for a certain field of activity and taught to regard himself as anyone's equal, runs head-on into competition he has not been prepared to meet and is knocked down and bruised by the impact. Better for himself and for everyone else if he has been taught to pick out the particular sack race he has a chance of winning—or, recognizing his limitations, summons up the will and the compensating strength to surmount them.

Poverty Breeds Angola Problems

By HENDERSON GALL

LUANDA, Angola (Reuters)—Anyone seeking the causes of the current revolt in this Portuguese territory soon becomes aware of two striking aspects of African life here—its abject poverty and the absence of any effective educational program.

The standard Portuguese version of the world, which erupted in mid-March, is that it is "a Communist plot planned in Moscow, organized in the Congo and financed from the United States."

But it is apparent to foreign observers in Angola that the causes lie deeper than this. Most agree that the revolt was planned by Angola refugees in the neighboring Congo republic but it found a ready response among Bakongo tribesmen in northern Angola because of the conditions under which they live.

Angola is one of the most backward territories in Africa. In 1960, only 190 students graduated from high schools and only 13 of these were Africans.

LITERACY LOW

At the time of the 1950 census, the most recent official figures available, there were only 33,644 literate Africans in all of Angola, compared with almost 4,000,000 who cannot read or write.

Today, there are about 4,500,000 Africans in the territory. But it is doubtful whether the ratio of literates to illiterates has altered much. The whole level of education is much lower than even the backward Congo.

Apart from lack of education, critics of the regime point to a harsh punishment of Africans, a forced labor system—although the name of it was changed to "contract labor" several years ago—and low wages.

Under the system of "contract labor," all "indigenous" Africans, who constitute the entire population, apart from about 40,000 assimilated Africans entitled to full rights as Portuguese citizens, are forced to work on plantations, roads and other public projects for six months in the year at a fixed wage.

Africans who work on the coffee plantations are generally paid 10 escudos (35 cents) a day.

Crop Failure Could Ease Berlin Crisis

MOSCOW (AP)—Russia has disclosed a virtual crop failure in Kazakhstan and the virgin lands, long a pet project of Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

The bad crop may have a considerable effect upon both domestic and international policies. Internationally, Russia almost always lowers its demands when there is a bad harvest since it has almost no reserves to fall back on.

Pravda reports that delegates to a Communist party meeting in the central Asian republic "spoke with great uneasiness about the fact that this year Kazakhstan cannot give the state much grain."

Last year Kazakhstan and the virgin lands also had a disastrous harvest. Nikolai Beliaev, the first secretary, was fired from his local job and from his top job on the Moscow presidium.

Whether this fate will befall his successor, D. A. Kunayev, is not immediately apparent.

In the development of the virgin lands, Premier Khrushchev sees those vast reaches of central Asia as a means of overtaking the United States in food production.

By all accounts, the harvest in western reaches of Russia is not much better.

Pravda blamed both bad weather and faulty techniques for the failure of the harvest.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Publicans Take Sober View

LONDON—The publicans here are showing a lack of enthusiasm for the new licensing laws, which come into being Nov. 1.

The public are grateful for a few concessions but the main cause of complaint from visitors about this country's drinking laws has not been removed.

The new regulations are, however, less rigid than the old.

Ordinary restaurants, such as suburban cafes, will now be allowed to serve drinks. So will residential hotels and seaside boarding houses. Liquor stores (called "off licence" or "off sales" here) will be allowed to stay open any time they like between 8.30 a.m. and 11 p.m. Formerly they could be open only when the pubs were open.

Now they can, if they want to, keep both store and pub hours, which naturally doesn't make the publicans happy, since the liquor stores will be taking away from them a lot of sales by the bottle.

There will be a 10-minute "drink up" period in pubs after closing time. This puts an end to the anomaly that drinks could be served right up to closing time, yet to consume liquor after closing time, or even to be on the premises, was illegal. Now 10 minutes grace is to be allowed.

But, complain the publicans, they always did allow a drinking up time. From Nov. 1 on, with customers legally allowed on the premises for 10 minutes after closing time, pub keepers say they're going to be stuck with the problem of their wanting to buy drinks in that period.

Night clubs get an extension from 2 a.m. to 3 a.m. closing. From March 1 next, pub hours will be extended... and this is where the publicans big beef comes.

During weekdays the permitted hours for London pubs will be 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. and 5.30 to 11. In the country the hours will be 11 to 3 and 5.30 to 10.30. Sunday hours for London and country will be 12 to 2 and 7 to 10.30.

Roughly speaking, pubs are going to stay open for a total of an extra hour each day.

The publicans' complaint is that it is going to make it that much more difficult to get and keep staff.

Also they'll have to increase their overheads for extra business that will amount to very little.

For example, pubs now open at 11.30 a.m. and don't perk up until about 12 o'clock. What will they gain by the new 11 o'clock opening law?

Neither the publicans nor the public want this 11 a.m. opening. So I asked the Home Office why it was introduced. They said simply: "Parliament wants it."

True Fall Crocuses in Bloom

The first of the true fall crocuses opened to the sunshine of the weekend. With us they are late this year, possibly due to being sunbaked in a shallow raised bed.

I top-dressed the bulbs with dampened peat moss some weeks ago, but it has taken the cooler, shorter days to bring the buds above ground.

The colchicums, also commonly called fall crocus though not even related, have almost finished flowering, so the crocuses have the little stage to themselves for a while.

Crocus speciosus albus, a fine white with a large flower, has opened first, and it will be followed by C. medius, a lilac-purple with orange-red anthers; C. artabari, a pale blue, and C. speciosus, a bright blue.

These are all true crocuses, just as are those of winter and early spring, and they come from central to southern Europe where they color the mountain sides in fall.

Since these little bulbs dry out quickly when exposed to the air for any length of time, I have found it works well to move them while in flower. They can then be found easily and no harm is done if they are dug with a small shovel or a trowel, taking plenty of earth around the roots as with any other plant which is in full growth.

Since the color yellow is missing among the fall crocuses it is fortunate that another bulb provides this during the latter part of the fall flowering period.

It is Sternbergia lutea, which has been called the Lily-of-the-field since it is native to the area around Palestine.

The bulb is similar in appearance to a small daffodil bulb but darker in color, the yellow crocus-shaped flower and the leaves appearing together, the flower lasting until late November and the leaves persisting until spring.

PROTECTIONIST POLICY DANGER FOR CANADA

HALIFAX (CP)—If Canada's national policy allows government protection for every industry that calls for protection, the country is heading for trouble, president Richard Wagner of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States said Tuesday in an address to the Canadian Chamber's annual meeting.

During the last 25 years, Mr. Wagner said reduction of tariffs had resulted in greatly expanded trade.

"Unfortunately, there is evidence that this movement towards trade liberalization between ourselves is coming to an end. During the last few years we have granted each other only minor concessions under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade."

OCTOBER CHEESE FESTIVAL

A Division of DAIRY FARMERS OF CANADA 147 Devonport Road, St. John's

HALIFAX (CP)—Howard T. Mitchell, newly-elected second national vice-president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, said today that "British Columbia proves again that socialism can be advanced by policies of governments declaring themselves to be utterly opposed to socialism."

Mr. Mitchell, referring to the expropriation by the British Columbia government of B.C. Electric Company, described himself as "a still-dazed British Columbian trying to collect his thoughts after discovering that his beloved free enterprise province, without ever a vote to favor such a course, has arrived at the position of being the most highly socialized society in Canada, clearly well in the lead of socialistically backward Saskatchewan in this respect."

Mr. Mitchell, president of Mitchell Press Ltd., Vancouver, added.

"The average British Columbian witnessed the confiscation of privately-financed and operated power in his province — without mandate, without notice, without normal provision for debate and without appeal as to price—in utmost apathy. But I have talked with new Canadians who were deeply shocked."

"Here was the old familiar shadow of the all-powerful state rising in this land where government was assumed to be the servant of the people who supported it, not the master of an obedient or acquiescent public."

Mr. Mitchell's comments were contained in a text made available to the press in advance of delivery.

Mr. Mitchell traced at length what he described as "increasing government participation in business in British Columbia" over the years.

All the considerable Chamber of Commerce work in British Columbia, he stated, had failed to get through the simplest of all messages of economic education.

Business Leadership Failure Hit

HALIFAX (CP)—Business has itself to blame for most of its problems, F. M. Covert, Halifax lawyer and industrialist, said Tuesday in an address to the annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

In a hard-hitting talk to his fellow businessmen, Mr. Covert said their failure to give leadership is responsible for bad labor-management relations, for the so-called welfare state and for the heavy taxation levied by governments.

Management, he said, should have solved the problems which now have become burdens under government solutions. Business could do anything better, more efficiently and cheaper than government could do it.

"It is bad leadership on our part," Mr. Covert declared, "that has put management and labor in opposite camps. This is not only unnatural but it is bad for both labor and management as well as for the consumer."

"Management must show employees and the public that union security is a fancy name that means very little. What counts is job security."

"What makes job security? The answer is a profitable plant, one that produces goods better than anyone else, earns enough to pay first class wages and good dividends, and plows back enough into the business to ensure that it can expand, do research and always maintain its position."

Mr. Covert, who is president of Moirs Ltd. and of Maritime Paper Products Ltd., and a director of a number of leading Canadian companies, recommended system of incentives to employees.

"Don't tell me it can't be done," he said. "I know three plants that have started it and every one of these plants is unionized. In one plant production has been increased by more than 16 per cent and labor has been cut by nearly 30 per cent. In another, production has been increased in one year by 12 per cent and labor cut by over 10 per cent. In all plants employees are receiving higher pay per hour than before and overtime has been cut."

Lost Hunter Survives Cold

Deer hunter Gerhard "Bud" Knudsen, 30, had resigned himself to being lost in rough country for 41 hours—until he was found by two other hunters, cold, wet but healthy Tuesday morning.

Knudsen, of 1020 Tattersall, disappeared late Sunday afternoon, falling to rendezvous with two hunting companions in the Mount Lazar area six miles northwest of Sooke Lake.

He said when brought out of the bush he had tried to conserve his energy and refused to become alarmed even though he was thoroughly confused by his surroundings.

When encountered about 10:30 a.m. on an old logging road near Leechtown by John Pegg, 280 Virago, and Thomas Finnie, 454 Gorge East, Knudsen was near exhaustion, having staggered over miles of rugged terrain; fallen in an icy creek and had only fitful sleep for about two hours in two nights.

20-Man Party

Fred Stalley, 20, of 6506 Oldfield, and Ernest Fresch, 42, of Cobble Hill, were his companions, who helped look for Knudsen Sunday and Monday, and joined a 20-man party to scour the woods at dawn Tuesday.

Pegg and Finnie gave Knudsen coffee and barbecued rabbit before they all returned to civilization and called police to cancel the search Tuesday afternoon.

Fireworks

Law Approved By Oak Bay

Approval of a uniform Greater Victoria fireworks bylaw was given Tuesday night by Oak Bay council in a 3-2 vote.

The bylaw, subject of lengthy discussion and drafting by an intermunicipal committee, covers the sale and use of fireworks in municipalities of the area, but had to be presented in individual form in each locality.

The Oak Bay version includes an amendment forbidding fireworks in any public place.

Sale of crackers is limited to the 48 hours before midnight Oct. 31 and the setting of fireworks to the 12 hours prior to midnight.

The three other Greater Victoria municipalities which have had a part in drafting the bylaw have yet to approve it in council.

Crowd Photo 'Just Routine' For RCMP

OTTAWA (UPI) — RCMP said today it was routine to photograph the crowd, as it did when Prime Minister John Diefenbaker was in Vernon, B.C., Sept. 28, when there is a possibility of a breach of the peace.

However, the Mounties denied that one of their men had posed as a newsman and questioned "ban the bomb" picketers about their political affiliation.

The statement followed remarks by Harold Winch, CCF Member of Parliament for Vancouver East and a long-time critic of the RCMP, that the Mounties had overstepped the mark in Vernon.

"The photographer was a regular member of the force," said RCMP headquarters, "and allegations that he questioned persons as to their political affiliation, etc., are completely untrue."

The picketers numbered about a dozen, but made their presence known as Diefenbaker was addressing a meeting of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities.

Police Admit Burglary Charges

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Seventeen men who as late as last Saturday were on the Denver police force paraded through district court Tuesday as principals in the scandals sweeping the city's law enforcement department.

Nine of them pleaded guilty to charges of burglary. Three entered not guilty pleas and five received delays in arraignment.

The guilty pleas were only to the single charge of burglary. The defendants also are charged with larceny, receiving stolen goods and conspiracy.

Governor Steve McNichols released through his office more details of how burglary rings within the police department operated. Some became so large, he said, that some safecrackers grew choosy about the men with whom they would work.

"In most instances, it was arranged that a Denver police car then on duty would meet the actual safe burglary gang at a location from three to six blocks away from the scene of the burglary to be," the governor's statement said.

"At this point, the necessary tools and equipment were transferred from the private cars of the safe gang to the police car, which in turn would transport the safe burglars to the scene and stand by as outside lookouts and cover for the safe burglars during the perpetration of the actual burglary."

WOULD DIAMOND GEM BE OK FOR ROYALTY?

MONTREAL (CP)—A baseball fan was an obvious participant in a poll conducted by The Gazette to determine what name Montrealers would like Princess Margaret and the Earl of Snowdon to give to the baby they expected.

His suggestion, if it's a boy: Roger Maris Armstrong-Jones.

Allen Stirring Seattle Salad To Old Recipe

Coach Keith Allen, who sends his Seattle Totems out at Esquimalt Sports Centre tonight for an exhibition clash with Portland Buckaroos is stirring up an old puck recipe.

Allen is mixing a Western Hockey League salad comprised of equal portions of green young rookies and salty old veterans, spiced with Allen's special brand of "go-go" sauce.

Allen hopes to toss a team at the Bucks tonight that will eventually do as well as the former Seattle club he has assembled. Under Keith's stirring, Seattle has finished first, second, second and never worse than fourth in five seasons.

But Guyle Fielder, the old lampighter, is back again to spearhead Allen's top line. Every time Guyle scores a point he breaks his own all-time league record, set last season at 872 on 225 goals and 647 assists.

The 31-year-old Fielder, five times league scoring champion, will be flanked by a pair of 21-year-old wingers in the early campaign. On his right will be sophomore Ed Ehrenverth, a Totem rookie last year, and rookie Jim Baird will patrol the left side. Baird scored 45 goals for Port Wayne of the International League in 1960-61.

Four or five rookies are expected to make the Seattle squad.

SOME STARS GONE

"Our average age may drop five years," says Allen. He smiles on one side and frowns on the other, looking over a rinkful of eager skaters while thinking of the stars gone elsewhere.

Defenceman Gordie Tansley has quit to go back to school and New York Rangers of the National Hockey League have grabbed Les Hunt, another solid defenceman. Wingers Marc Boileau and Eddie Staniewicz were recalled by Detroit Red Wings of the NHL and Murray Wilkie has returned to Vancouver Canucks for re-assignment.

BOILS AT NAME

When Detroit is mentioned Allen suffers from what Totem fans call the Boileau boil. He expected Marc back if he failed to make the grade with the Red Wings, but Detroit shipped Boileau to Hershey Bears of the American League. Boileau scored 42 goals for Seattle last year and was the club's fourth highest point-getter.

ROOKIE IN GOAL

Allen committed himself to a rookie goaltender when he traded Bev Bentley, a three-year man with Seattle, to San Francisco Seals. Jim McLeod, a standout last year with Muskegon of the IHL and a graduate of Vernon Canadians of the Okanagan Senior League, has taken his place.

Back again is Rudy Filion, the club's top scorer last year with 36 goals and 60 assists, who at first decided to retire after 13 years in professional hockey. He is expected to help Allen with the coaching.

Other players returning this season include defencemen Gord Sinclair and Frank Arnett, forwards Don Chiupka, Bill MacFarland, Tom McVie and Gerry Leonard.

Game time tonight is 8:30.

Racing Cars Set to Roar Here Monday

Speed will be the theme at Colwood Park Monday.

Scheduled for the one-mile dirt track are the B.C. Automotive Sports Association championship automobile races, which have been held only once previously.

Sprint cars and stock cars are scheduled to whirl through eight events, including two main events of 25 laps each.

Cars are expected to hit speeds of better than 125 miles per hour on the straightaways as American and Canadian drivers compete for prize money.

Among the U.S. drivers entered are Bob Scovell and Bill Hyde.

Drakes Out to Claim Berth in Grid Final

Victoria Drakes' only victory of the season, by a 35-6 score, has come at the expense of University of British Columbia Chiefs.

The same two squads trade blocks and tackles Saturday afternoon at MacDonald Park, but the Drakes are not looking for another easy victory.

Chiefs, winless in three starts, have been bolstered by recent cuts from the Thunderbirds—UBC's varsity squad. That, plus Victoria coach Jack Patrick's opinion that the score in their first meeting "wasn't a true indication of play," could mean trouble for the hot-and-cold Drakes.

PBO PROSPECT

Quarterback Stan Knight is one of the new additions to the Chiefs' lineup. Others are Gordon Nishi and Gary Bruce. The latter, ineligible to play for the Thunderbirds, tried out for B.C. Lions at the start of the season.

The main reward to be gained from Saturday's battle, of course, is a berth in the playoffs. New Westminster Royals have all but clinched first place, and there's room for only one other team in the sudden-death B.C. final.

A Drake triumph Saturday would go a long way towards snuffing down that second berth.

Off to Europe

KAMLOOPS—Rex Turpie, high-scoring forward with Kamloops Chiefs of the Okanagan Senior Hockey League last season, has accepted a position as playing-coach of a team at Klagenfurt, Austria.

EARLY BIRDS

Early arrivals in bleacher section of Yankee Stadium, Pennsylvania housewives Harriet Lobecker (left) and Glee Cooper pour hot coffee in early-morning cold while waiting start of today's World Series game between New York and Cincinnati Reds. Chilly weather greeted early birds.

ONE-TIME STARS

But Can They Sparkle Again?

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Mets and Houston Colts, the two new National League baseball clubs, will be able to form their teams from a list that includes former league stars Robin Roberts, Gil Hodges, Red Schoendienst, Sam Jones, Richie Ashburn and Johnny Antonelli. The Associated Press has learned.

The selections from the lists of 15 players made available by each of the eight established clubs will be made by Houston and New York the day after the World Series ends.

Although the lists are in the hands of officials of the Mets and Colts, they will not be officially disclosed by the league.

The AP has learned, however, that Roberts, Hodges, Schoendienst, Jones, Ashburn and Antonelli are on the lists together with such other name players as Clem Labine, Johnny Logan, Vinegar Bend Mizell, and Bobby Shantz of Pittsburgh Pirates; Billy Loes and Eddie Bressoud of San Francisco Giants; Norm Larker and Roger Craig of Los Angeles Dodgers; and Pancho Herrera of Philadelphia Phillies.

PLAYING IN SERIES

Cincinnati's current list, AP learned, contains only the names of those not eligible for the World Series. It is reported that Gus Bell, Dick Gernert and Jay Hook may be among those made available once the series ends.

General manager Paul Richards and manager Harry Craft of Houston have indicated they will concentrate on young stars, while George Weiss and Casey Stengel say the Mets are after experience.

"We will be operating against some strong competition in New York," said Weiss, referring to the Yankees. Houston has no such opposition. Therefore, we must go for the name players the fans will want to see."

Heavies' Title Scrap First for Canadians

BALTIMORE (AP)—Baltimore Orioles paved the way today for the unconditional release of two veteran outfielders, Jim Busby and Dave Philley, by asking waivers on them.

Lee Macphail, Oriole president, said the club wants to put two minor league players on the roster so they can't be drafted by other major league teams.

Both Busby, 34, and Philley, 41, were used in relief roles.

TWO GAMES FOR UNITED

Holiday Feast for Soccer Fans

Thanksgiving Day weekend should be just that for city soccer fans. They have a feast of boating fare on the holiday menu.

Topping the offerings is a double appearance at Royal Athletic Park by Victoria United.

United, sharing second place in the Pacific Coast Soccer League and undefeated in three matches, tackles the talented New Westminster Royals Saturday at 2 and then meets Vancouver Firefighters in a Monday match. Firefighters are sharing second place with United and Vancouver Canadians, one point behind front-running Columbus.

Coach Wally Milligan's Victoria squad, flashing an unexpectedly strong defence, has played to draws in all its three matches, breaking even with Canadians, Columbus and Royals.

With three games also scheduled at Vancouver, the close race in the seven-team loop could be scrambled considerably by the time weekend booting ends.

Sunday will be a busy day of kicking in the Victoria and District Football League, which has six matches scheduled.

Brodie's Bakery are slated to tackle Evcoes at Heywood Avenue, Saanich Thistles meet Nanaimo at Reynolds Road, Canadian Scottish and Heaneys clash at Topaz Park, Gorge Hotel and Victoria West meet at Central Park and Kickers face Esquimalt at Bullen Park.

In a match at Ladysmith, the home club takes on the undefeated Duncan Rangers.

Stamp Upset Overshadows Aces' Return

Gordie Howe and Norm Ullman made a triumphant return, but it was Calgary Stampede who provided the big explosion on the exhibition hockey front Tuesday night.

The Stampede upset the National Hockey League Montreal Canadiens, 3-2, in Calgary.

Howe and Ullman returned to Detroit Red Wings' exhibition tour and contributed four goals and four assists between them as Wings crushed Edmonton Flyers 9-3 at Red Deer, Alta.

Roth had been out of competition for nearly two weeks with injuries. Howe nipped in one goal in the first period and two in the third and Ullman scored in the first, with each assisting on a pair of goals.

COMETS CLIPPED

At Spokane, Toronto Maple Leafs beat Spokane Comets 5-1.

Another exhibition contest saw Chicago Black Hawks whip Sudbury Wolves of the Eastern Professional Hockey League 6-1 in Sudbury.

Ed Litzenberger, Marcel Pronovost, Vic Stasiuk, Lloyd Had- don and Al Johnson counted the others for the Wings. Edmonton's replies came from Larry Jeffrey, Len Lunde and Roger DeJorja.

Montreal's loss in Calgary was the first time in six years an NHL team lost to a Western League club.

Rookie goalie Cesare Man- ago was in the Montreal nets in the second period when the Stampede fired home three goals, two during penalties to Canadian defenceman Lou Fontinato.

SCORING SPLIT

Norm Johnson, Jim Brown and Lou Jankowski counted for Calgary with Claude Provost scoring for Montreal in the first period and Marcel Bonin getting the other late in the third.

Two players—Eddie Shack and Red Kelly—scored for al- of Toronto's scoring at Sp- kane. Shack counted three times and Kelly twice, with veteran WHL performer Colin Kilburn getting the Comets' lone reply early in the third.

At Sudbury, Bobby Hall was responsible for three of the Chicago goals, two of them within 34 seconds in the final period. Ken Wharram, Reg Fleming and Al McDonald also scored for the Stanley Cup champions, and Ed Stankiewicz got Sudbury's only reply in the second period.

In other exhibition games, Springfield Indians beat Buffalo Bisons 6-3, and Kitchener Waterloo Beavers took a 3-1 decision from North Bay.

NEW YORK (AP) —

Figuring the series, Luis Arroyo, Yankee relief ace, will be seeking revenge against Cincinnati. The Reds dropped him early in 1959 after he had won his only decision. He was sent to the International League club at Havana, which moved to Jersey City, from where he went to New York last year. Arroyo had a 15-5 record with the Yanks this season.

The Reds had a big edge over the Yanks in stolen bases during the regular season. Cincinnati stole 69 times and New York 29. The Reds also hit into fewer double plays, 137 to New York's 153.

Ken Johnson is the only Cincinnati pitcher to have faced the Yankees this season. While with Kansas City he worked 2 2/3 innings against them April 15, giving up one hit and no runs. The Reds purchased him from Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League in July.

Yogi Berra of the Yanks will extend two of his series records just by having his name written in the starting lineup today. He has played in the most Series, 11, and the most Series games, 68. Berra also holds the Series records for most times at bat (24), runs (39), runs batted in (36), hits (68) and singles (47).

Mickey Mantle took himself out of the New York Yankees' starting lineup after taking two or three swings in batting practice. Mantle told manager Ralph Houk he would not be able to play. "It will be a day-to-day proposition," said Mantle.

VIKING VIEWS

By LES MILLIN

Victoria College athletes, now that the fuss and flurry of the opening of college has had time to subside, are surveying the campus sports scene and finding it bright.

With the student population almost touching the 1,800 mark, college athletics have never looked better. The expanded curriculum has attracted more high school graduates and held students who might normally have headed for Vancouver and UBC for their senior years at university.

New plans, new ideas are the order of the day on campus, in sports as in all other fields.

Flushed with the memory of their spectacular season last year—after they acquired a coach, they never lost a game—the ice hockey team has moved its operating site to the new Esquimalt Arena, where it can get more convenient ice time.

Starting Oct. 20, the skaters will be playing at 8.30 every Friday evening in a four-team league, a distinct improvement over last year's arrangement with the Memorial Arena, which had them playing at midnight and paying for the privilege.

Financial arrangements with the Esquimalt Arena call for the college team to pocket one-fifth of the profits, if any, of the ice hockey season.

Basketball, a sport viewed by many collegians with mingled pride and puzzlement, is experiencing a little bewilderment as it, organizers, but the indications are that it should soon be shaping up into a crowd-collector of note.

Darrell Lorimer, Viking tall man who scored about a third of the total points to the college credit last season, will not attend college this session, a blow which might be ducked by use of a campus rule permitting one non-student in every six players on a team.

Tuesday evening saw a small turnout for the first basketball practice of the season, and sports officials are hoping that more new students will come out to let coach Bill Garner see their talents.

On the distaff side, we find the college girls' grass hockey team raring to go. Their first game is scheduled for Saturday at 2.30 p.m. at the Victoria High pitch.

A solid core of last season's team, augmented with a number of first-year fillies from St. Margaret's School team which was the only local team to trim the collegians last year, will face the Grasshoppers Saturday as their first operation of the year in the Victoria Ladies' Grass Hockey League.

Susan E. Mearns is captain of the team for the coming season, with Mrs. Maureen Hiberson coaching once again.

"It's a whirl," moan Sue Dickinson and Tom Wyatt, directors of women's and men's athletics, respectively, for Victoria College, looking at more athletes and more sports than the college has ever had before.

"I'm really hopeful, though," says Wyatt.

The puck loop at Esquimalt Sports Centre Tuesday night officially became a four-team circuit when Victoria College Vikings confirmed their entry in the league, which also includes Esquimalt, HMCS Naden and the PPCLI.

Elected president of the Esquimalt District Amateur Hockey League was Prof. A. E. Loft, who will be the sole

Sportsmen Plan Unified Assault To Aid Wildlife

Canada's 10 provincial game and fish associations plan to form a national body this month in order to mount a unified assault on wildlife problems.

The move was announced in Winnipeg Tuesday by Paul Murphy of Winnipeg, secretary-manager of the Manitoba Game and Fish Association.

The national organization is to be officially launched at a meeting of representatives from the provincial associations in Montreal Oct. 23-28.

Murphy said the setup of a national organization will be the single most important advance in the history of the Canadian conservation movement.

The new group, as yet unnamed, will bring the estimated 200,000 members of Canadian sportsmen's clubs under unified leadership.

Absorbed into proposed organization will be the Western Canada Yukon Council, a loose federation of hunting and angling clubs in the four western provinces and the Yukon.

The Canadian organization will be patterned after the American Wildlife Federation which has been in existence for years.

NEEDED CHANGE
"There has been a long-felt need in Canada for a similar organization," Murphy said.

The new association, he said, will allow game and fish clubs to tackle conservation and other problems on a national scale for the first time.

Murphy, who is also managing editor of the Wildlife Crusader, a Canadian outdoor magazine, said commercial interests in certain parts of Canada have destroyed wildlife areas for short-term gain.

The wildlife group is expected to tackle this and related problems including the virtual disappearance of prairie chicken from the west in the last 10 years.

POLICY STUDIED
The federal government's policy on recovering arable land by draining marshes will likely also get close scrutiny in the future.

Many game and fish officials feel this policy is seriously reducing nesting grounds and hatching areas for waterfowl.

The new body is also expected to examine predator control, relations between landowners and sportsmen, methods of preserving wildlife sanctuaries and educating hunters and anglers in sound conservation methods.

MYTA GETS DESPERATE—TRIES HAT-PIN SYSTEM

Things are getting tight, so Myta Haddim today turned to that remarkably effective implement of female horse players.

She picked up a hat pin. Myta, who had only $11.30 of the original betting stake of $25 to work with when she knocked her spouse, Shudda, out of the saddle and took over the family fortune, saw it dwindle to $9.30 when she picked a loser Monday.

She had a deuce to win on Indian Springs today and plans to get a big boost Thursday with a $2 place parlay on three horses. Her jabs with the hat pin gave her these horses: Macbane in the second, Songtime in the third and Noble Count in the sixth.

Meanwhile, she's sharpening up the pin.

Lions to Use Jones While Jeter Limping

VANCOUVER (CP)—Full-back Jimmy Jones, a former Washington University star, has returned to British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference as a replacement for injured halfback Bob Jeter.

Head coach Dave Skrien said Tuesday examination Monday of Jeter's left ankle, injured in the Lions' 21-9 victory over Edmonton Saturday, revealed a floating bone chip and a bad sprain. He won't be ready until after next weekend when Lions have two games on the road.

Jones, cut by the Lions earlier this season when leg trouble that struck him in training camp didn't clear up, had joined Oakland of the American Football League briefly after being released by

Sherman Fashions Fine Win Average

Jockey Al Sherman, holding a narrow lead in winning mounts when racing resumed today at Sandown Park, has chalked up an impressive victory average at the Sidney track.

The veteran Sherman has piloted 14 winners under the wire, one more than George Miller has booted home in first place.

However, Sherman has been aboard only 48 mounts, which gives him a 32.3 per cent mark. Miller has hit the winners' circle 13 times, but he has started in 66 races for a winning percent of 19.8.

Miller has finished no worse than third on more than half his mounts, getting place money 10 times and riding 11 third-place finishers. Sherman has two seconds and five thirds.

CUSTODIAN OF THE PEACE

By JOSEPH P. LASH
Chapter IX

On Aug. 1, 1960, the hurricane was first sighted. Chairman Khrushchev proposed that the heads-of-state personally participate in the disarmament debate of the Assembly session that was scheduled to open Sept. 20.

The 15th General Assembly, which opened on Sept. 20, was to be history's most raucous if not most productive diplomatic assemblage. The cast of characters included the most powerful leaders of the Communist states except for Mao Tse-tung.

There were the neutralist Big Five—Nehru, Tito, Nasser, Nkrumah and Sukarno. With the neutralists turning up in such force, the leaders of the West, except for an immovable de Gaulle, overcoming their distaste for the huge propaganda circus, starting with Eisenhower and including Macmillan, Diefenbaker and Menzies put in an appearance. Khrushchev turned the staid parliamentary traditions of the Assembly into a shambles.

Verbal Assault Pours Forth

For the first two hours the assault against the West poured forth—for colonial repression, for dragging its heels on disarmament, for the U-2 affair.

Then he turned his guns on Hammarskjöld. He had "sided with the colonialists" in the carrying out of the Security Council's decisions on the Congo.

This had ominous implications. There was increasing talk about a UN Force that would replace national armies after disarmament. But the way the UN Force had been misused in the Congo to serve the interest of only one group of states "puts us on our guard."

There was a new relationship of forces in the world. There were no longer two camps, as at the beginning of the UN, but three—the socialist, the capitalist and the neutralist.

'All Three Must Agree'

"All three secretaries must be agreed on a concerted decision," he emphasized to newsmen. "I don't know what you call it," he added puckerily.

He declared further that there could be no solution of the disarmament problem without reorganization of the Secretary-General's office on a tripartite basis.

When the session resumed Hammarskjöld asked Boland's permission to address the Assembly. In a voice totally devoid of dramatics, as if he were reading a lecture on international law, he made his reply.

The issue was not the man but the institution. "Use whatever words you like, independence, impartiality, objectivity—they all describe essential aspects of what, without exception, must be the attitude of the Secretary-General."

"Such an attitude," he went on, "may at any stage become an obstacle for those who work for certain political aims which would be better achieved if the Secretary-General compromised with this attitude. But if he did, how gravely he would then betray the trust of all those for whom the strict maintenance of such an attitude is their best protection in the world-wide fight for power and influence."

Question of Confidence

Khrushchev soon removed all ambiguity on the point. Exercising his "right of reply" the Soviet leader made it clear that he was raising a personal as well as a constitutional issue, and that there had been a major shift in Soviet policy toward the UN reflecting what the Soviet leaders assessed to be the new correlation of forces in the world.

The world situation had been radically altered since the founding of the UN, Khrushchev said. The UN structure was now "out of date." A billion people lived under "socialism." Another billion were to be found living in the neutralist states of Asia and Africa. Neither of these blocs was adequately represented in the organs of the UN, especially the Secretariat.

"Only one man" was the interpreter and executor of the decisions of the Council and Assembly, but there were no "saints on earth" capable of defending the interests of all three groups.

Institution Counts Over Man

The issue, he repeated, was not "of a man but of an institution. The man does not count, the institution does. A weak or non-existent executive would mean that the UN would no longer be able to serve as an effective instrument for active protection of the interests of those many members who need such protection. The man holding the responsibility as chief executive should leave if he weakens the executive; he should stay if this is necessary for its maintenance."

This alone should be the controlling consideration.

Khrushchev had said the

World-Wide Orders Flowing In To Skilled Ladysmith Bow-Maker

LADYSMITH — Orders are being received here from all parts of the world for bows made by Art Williams, who has earned an international reputation as a skilled bow-maker and archer.

His bows are successfully competing with the best made by United States manufacturers.

The story of Mr. Williams' bows started four years ago when the Ladysmith archer made a few as a hobby. As his interest grew, he experimented with materials and discovered a new method.

Instead of using wood, he used a composite fibreglass-reinforced plastic material, with a specially-processed adhesive. The bows turned out to be lighter, yet stronger, than the ordinary bows.

Vancouver Island archers were the first to start using Mr. Williams' bows.

They gained in popularity when a Ladysmith archer, Tony Turner, won the Pacific archery championships for three successive years with a Williams bow.

Then this year, Art Williams won the championship at Libby, Montana.

Three other championships have been won this past year with Williams' bows — the Canadian, the British Empire and the International championships.

Now Mr. Williams is turning out bows day and night for archers from all parts of the world.

He hopes to persuade the B.C. government to follow the example of some other Canadian provinces in declaring a special hunting season for archers. Saskatchewan has a three-week season, and Alberta a one-week season, for archers only, before the opening of the regular hunting season.

Island Men On Board Of Bureau

PENTICTON (CP) — George Harvey of Nelson Tuesday was elected as the new president of the Associated Credit Bureaus of British Columbia at its annual meeting here.

George Patrick, Revelstoke, was chosen vice-president and Tom Downey, Vancouver, secretary-treasurer.

Other directors are Charles Pearce, Courtenay, retiring president; Mrs. Kay Charter, Vernon; Bob Britton, Nanaimo; Dave Evans, Trail and Byron Swinney, Cranbrook.

Special Session

EDMONTON (CP) — Premier Manning announced today that a special session of the Alberta legislature will open Tuesday, Nov. 28. It is not expected to last more than two days.

The premier said that only one item of business will be considered—the new federal provincial tax arrangement.

'DEPRESSING' SAYS BRITON OF TORONTO

LONDON (CP) — British writer Angus Maude had better stay away from Toronto. He classes it as one of the world's most depressing cities.

In a light-hearted account of a recent visit to Moscow, written for The Evening Standard, Maude says it just isn't true, despite what people say who have to live there, that Moscow is the most depressing city in the world.

Maude says Kansas City is "worse," and "Toronto runs it pretty close."

Once a brilliant backroom boy for the Conservatives, Maude was elected MP for London's Ealing South in 1951, quit in 1958 to take a job as newspaper editor in Australia and now is touring in Asia.

Off Hours School Use Investigated

Wider use of school properties for after-hours recreation will be subject of a meeting between Oak Bay parks committee and school trustees.

Council Tuesday night agreed to a suggestion by Coun. Allan Cox that the meeting be held after Coun. Gordon Elworthy elaborated on a letter from the municipal recreation commission.

Ernest Costain, for the commission, wrote:

"Each year it is getting more difficult to accommodate all the sports organizations who wish to play on the present playing field areas in Oak Bay."

"We feel that every one of the clubs that are applying for time are accomplishing excellent results with the young people in our community and are entitled to have some place to play."

"Therefore, we are respectfully requesting the council to seriously consider presenting a formal application to the Greater Victoria School Board to open school playing areas so that these clubs that are working with juvenile sport groups may have the use of them after school hours."

Referring for example to Little League ball players, Coun. Elworthy said, "These are the same children who attend the schools, and the same taxpayers provide the facilities..."

Coun. Watts pointed out he could "quite see the school board afraid of letting them get a foot in the door, they are such a demanding group for their own purposes."

He suggested they require such things as a pitcher's mound, bleachers, and so on, which the schools do not have.

Community Group Fined

CHEMAINUS — Pleading guilty to a charge of operating an illegal lottery, the Chemaenus Community Centre Association was fined $250 in Ladysmith court Tuesday.

The lottery was for a boat. A. I. MacDonald, counsel for the accused, said the lottery was not held for personal gain.

The monies were spent on the purchase of sports equipment for youths who use the community centre; he said.

Union Bay Land Trade Suggested

UNION BAY — Canadian Colliers Resources Ltd. has offered to exchange land for the site of the Union Bay Community Club Hall, and thus give the company "the only piece of foreshore property it now does not own in the area."

A company spokesman said this move was no indication that a pulp mill would be built there, as has been suggested for several years, but that the company would be ready to build such a mill on short notice.

Judge Doubts Sneeze Excuse

DUNCAN — Cobble Hill motorist Bertran Lukovich said in court that his car swerved because he sneezed, and that he staggered because the road was rough.

Police said they could smell liquor on Lukovich "from six feet away."

Magistrate A. C. Sutton said "guilty," and fined him $150 for impaired driving.

Dam Backer Draws Gasp At Hearing

(Times News Services)
CASTLEGAR—Water Rights Comptroller Arthur Paget Tuesday heard the first words of support for the British Columbia Power Commission's plans to erect storage dams on the Columbia River during hearings here into the hydro's application.

The application is for a chain of dams, a vital part of the international Columbia River power project.

D. W. Forteach, whose home is at the site of the proposed High Arrow dam, told the hearing:

"All I have to say is I'm in favor of the dam going in—and the quicker the better."

The statement drew gasps from the hall during the first day of hearings in this West Kootenay pulp mill community.

NEW POLICE BUILDING

KELOWNA — A plebiscite will be put before Kelowna voters in December for a new RCMP administration office, cells and court facilities at a cost of $128,000.

A similar plebiscite was turned down by the voters last year.

'CHICKEN' BLAMED

VANCOUVER — An insurance executive Tuesday blamed the teen-aged game of "chicken" — in which teenagers take foolhardy risks with cars — for many of the traffic smashes involving young drivers.

K. B. H. Malthouse, B.C. manager of the All-Canada Insurance Federation, told members of the Association of Insurance Women that "too often ordinarily responsible youngsters are shamed by their friends into proving they are not cowards, usually with fatal results."

GIFTS DOUBLED

VANCOUVER — Red Feather campaign contributions Tuesday reached $893,709 — more than double the take at the same time last year.

Campaign officials said better organization put the charity appeal ahead of previous years.

LAY OFF 299

VANCOUVER — The Vancouver division of MacMillan Bloedel and Powell River, Ltd., has laid off 299 workers until after Christmas or late January.

Officials said the layoff is seasonal and occurs as soon as bad weather hits eastern Canada, the chief plywood market.

PRESERVE ST. ROCH

VANCOUVER — Mayor Albury has received a letter from the federal government indicating a willingness to pay $41,000 toward preservation of the historic RCMP vessel St. Roch, now slowly rotting at its showplace at Kitsilano Beach.

Education Finances Probe Urged

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia School Trustees Association convention today will be asked to endorse a call for a provincial royal commission on education finances.

The request for a study of education money raising followed a panel discussion Tuesday.

Municipal, business, farm and labor representatives termed the present education tax on land and improvements unjust. The panel favored specific income taxes with federal participation in financing educational costs.

Trustee W. J. Peck of Cowichan Bay said the effect of a taxation method change would require study.

T. R. B. Adams, secretary-manager of the Union of B.C. Municipalities, said that organization believes education is a community responsibility. Property ownership is not a fair basis to determine services.

Research director George Grundig of the B.C. Federation of Labor (CLC) said the federal government should take more responsibility for financing education finance.

UNFAIR TO FARMERS

Research director C. E. S. Walls of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture said farmers are hit unfairly by property taxes. He also called for federal financial support for education.

He charged: "The biggest opposition does not come from cabinets, but from senior civil servants and department heads who resist any change."

R. E. Lester of Haney was elected president. He succeeds A. M. Harvey of Ocean Falls. A lawyer, Mr. Lester is a Maple Ridge school trustee. He defeated J. C. Stiggins of Powell River.

Business Tide Turns as Victoria Economy Swings Upward

Times Business Editor

After more than two years of economic slackness, the Victoria area this fall shows strong signs of having "turned the corner" and to be entering a period of good business recovery, a survey of business and industry leaders showed today.

Among the signs which indicate a more prosperous year ahead:

- The latest National Employment Service report, issued today, shows that at Sept. 29 there were 3,142 persons seeking employment through the NES in the Victoria employment area. This is the lowest figure since Sept. 10, 1958, when there were 3,133 registered and contrasts with the peak registration of 6,032 last Jan. 19.

- Most retail stores report a strong pickup in business. The city's two leading department stores were literally "mobbed" by customers during recent sales.

- Initial sales of new model cars have been the highest in several years. Several dealers expect to have trouble supplying the demand and they report there is "no quibbling on prices." Sales manager of a major car dealer stated that for the first time in several years it's "a buying public rather than a haggling public."

The surge of consumer confidence seems to be based on several factors.

For one thing a record-breaking tourist season has pumped many millions of extra dollars into the economy.

William Hawkins, Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau commissioner, estimates "most conservatively" that tourists spent at least $45 million this year — up about 20 per cent.

This figure is based on a flow of 1,000,000 tourists with a three-day stay period and spending $15 a day.

Mr. Hawkins personally believes that the per-day spending is much higher, but even using the conservative figure it's a big boost for the economy.

Next year Victoria and the Island generally must be braced to accommodate at least 500,000 extra tourists drawn from the Seattle Century 21 Exposition, Mr. Hawkins says.

This will pump at least another $22 million into the Victoria area and the effect of this is already being felt in heavier spending by tourist industry people preparing for the onslaught.

Another strong economic confidence factor has been the announcement of many millions of dollars worth of construction projects, ranging from huge apartments to a giant shopping centre complex, which will bolster the construction industry for many months to come.

Other local industries, many of them small but important in the aggregate, expect to maintain a high employment level this winter.

Of considerable importance in the industrial field is an announcement from John Wallace, general manager of Yarrows Ltd., that employment in shipbuilding, repairs and industrial work will be maintained at about 550 men over the next 18 months.

This is about 200 men more than the employment average over the past two years," Mr. Wallace said.

Work on hand at Yarrows includes a destroyer escort, a $1,800,000 fisheries research vessel and three $100,000 chip barges along with industrial and ship repair work.

In addition tenders are expected soon for four Department of Transport vessels — two for coast guard work and two weather ships. Yarrows hopes to be successful in bidding on some of this work.

At Victoria Machinery Depot the winter employment picture is not so good, according to president Harold Husband. When the new government ferry Mv. Victoria is delivered in February, ship construction at VMD will be at an end and there is nothing in sight immediately.

However, Mr. Husband said, the firm is actively seeking jobs for its new $1,800,000 industrial division installation and there is some hope there.

VMD will also be tendering on the four DOT vessels, Mr. Husband said, but there is not much chance that any actual construction will get underway on them before next June.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1961—PAGE 17

MONTE ROBERTS

Mayor Percy B. Scurrah,
City Hall,
Victoria, B.C.

Dear Mr. Mayor, Sir:

I see where you are having a bit of a hassle with the census enumerators about the case of the missing citizens. The census enumerators say Greater Victoria has grown by 17,000 persons in five years, but Victoria itself (Lesser Victoria?) has shrunk by 700 in population.

You, Mr. Mayor, Sir, say this can't be so.

And, as a loyal admirer of this, the Fairest City of Them All, I agree with you.

Nobody in his right mind would believe a reduction in population in this beautiful, beautiful bough.

But we must be fair with the head counters, Mr. Mayor, Sir. I don't believe they set out deliberately to downgrade Victoria.

The first possible explanation which slipped into my mind was that on the day the head counters came around, 1,400 people were of half a mind not to answer the questions, thus reducing the overall figure by 700.

On the other hand, it is entirely possible that at least 700 people were out to lunch when the census man called. Being out to lunch is one of Victoria's most popular pastimes, and I have noticed a tendency on the part of a great many business men to go out to lunch from 12 noon Tuesday to 10 a.m. Wednesday.

Another explanation might be, 700 people had gone fishing. This is a most wonderful place to go fishing, as there is very rarely any danger of being bothered by catching a fish.

(The danger of catching a fish, and having to yard it in, however slight it might be, is the reason I don't go fishing.)

The next explanation I considered was that the 700 missing citizens were out in the garden, admiring their compost heaps when the census was being taken.

Victoria is the city of gardens, Mr. Mayor, Sir, and the proud possessor of the biggest compost heaps in the world. It would be very easy to misplace 700 odd citizens hidden behind their compost heaps.

But I don't think any of these is the true explanation, Mr. Mayor, Sir.

I think this is what happened in at least 700 cases: The census man asked, "where do you live?"

And the respondent, gazing dreamily out his window, across his charming garden, at the cloud-whipped sky hanging over the blue sea—feeling the soft zephyr of a banana-belt breeze — would reply:

"I live in Paradise."

Naturally, being in full agreement with this sentiment, the census man wrote down "Place of residence—Paradise," and there you are.

LIFE STRUGGLE

No Childhood For Children Of Jordan

The tattered children of Jordan have never seen a toy and in the true sense they have no childhood.

"The people are too busy struggling to live to provide fun and games for their youngsters," says Sybil Conery, executive secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Save the Children Fund who has just completed a tour of Middle East refugee camps.

Visiting Victoria today, Miss Conery revealed there are still a million Arab refugees in Jordan, Syria, Lebanon and Gaza.

"The people of southern Jordan live much as they did when Christ was on earth," she said. "I was horrified by all the hunger, the poverty and the tattered clothing they wear."

In all my travels I saw only one toy—a dirty old doll—and a line of children were waiting their turn to hold it.

"The tragic thing is that the population of Jordan is increasing by 30,000 children every year."

HALLOWEEN HELP

Miss Conery stated that the money collected by B.C. children—like the $20,000 they collected last Halloween for the Save the Children Fund—goes to help the children of destitute people.

In Jordan she asked officials whether Canadian youngsters should send toys to the children. She was told that, while toys are desirable, the need for food, clothing and medical supplies is much greater and must be given priority.

Doctors, nurses and other Save the Children Fund workers use tents, hovels and caves, particularly among the nomadic Bedouins.

"About 65 per cent of the children are suffering from TB in various stages," Miss Conery said. "There is no problem getting them to want to go to school—they all want to go. But, alas, there are hardly any schools."

STRIKING CONTRAST

"There is a striking contrast between the rich and poor. While thousands are living in direct poverty, some of the local sheikhs have Cadillacs parked outside their tents."

Miss Conery did most of her travel in Jordan and Gaza on horseback, because there are few roads and little transportation.

Ross Receives Commission At Ceremony

Frank M. Ross, former lieutenant-governor of the province, will be presented with his commission as honorary colonel of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) tonight at the Bay Street Armoury.

At the ceremony which will take place in the Officers' Mess at 8:30 p.m., Mr. Ross will meet all serving members of the regiment.

Before the presentation, he will be honored at a dinner to be held in the Union Club.

The previous honorary colonel of the regiment, Hon. R. W. Mayhew, retired in 1959.

ARCHIE WILLS
... offered post.

Ex-Alderman Heads Up Centenary

Archie Wills, former alderman and newspaperman, has been appointed to take charge of organizing Victoria's 1962 centennial celebrations.

Mayor Percy Scurrah announced today.

The mayor also revealed that centennial planning will shift emphasis to the historical aspects of the event.

"Mr. Wills, who has a great and intimate knowledge of the city's history, has agreed to take over, at least until things are whipped into shape," Mayor Scurrah said.

APPLICATIONS

"He will co-ordinate all the planning work of the various sub-committees appointed to arrange specific programs."

Thirteen applications were screened by the city personnel office for the $400-a-month post-vacated suddenly by William Dow—but none of them were found suitable.

"Mr. Wills has agreed to take over at our request, although he did not apply for the post," said the mayor.

A native Victorian, Mr. Wills worked with The Daily Times from 1907 to his retirement in 1951 as managing editor.

As an alderman for 10 consecutive years, he led the polls from 1935 to 1944 and served as police commissioner in 1938 and 1939.

'Impaired Boating' Brings $250 Fine

An Oak Bay boatowner was fined $250 and prohibited from operating any craft in Canada for six months when he pleaded guilty in police court today to a seldom heard charge of impaired boat driving.

Oak Bay police arrested Horace J. Sims, 2620 Currie, and another occupant of his boat, Herbert Sinnott, 559 Paradise, after a dramatic hour-long episode off the Harling Point waterfront Tuesday night.

The 36-foot semi-enclosed launch Water Tourist had been cruising at half-speed in tight circles—in reverse — defying attempts of other boatmen to board her while Sims and Sinnott lay sleeping on the craft's floorboards, out of sight from shore.

Police from Oak Bay and Victoria watched from the shore, helplessly as efforts to

Siren's Warning Volume Feared

City Officials Wait Decision at Ottawa

Installation of new air raid sirens in Victoria is expected to bring a muted wall of anguish from citizens. Civic officials sounded the "alert" today as the federal government called for tenders for installation of new units here and on the lower mainland.

They're watching to see what kind of sirens are installed.

The fear is that Ottawa will erect the half-ton, 10-horsepower mechanical brutes which City Hall fought to a standstill 18 months ago as "ungainly and unsightly" — the words used by Mayor Percy Scurrah as chairman of the Civil Defence Control Board.

But today's tender call looked as though the city lost its battle.

"There's nothing more we can add to our protest," said Mayor Scurrah. "We'll just have to wait to see what they put up."

DEAFENING

He said they would require special large towers to mount and would deafen nearby residents.

Mayor Scurrah proposed that small, electronic units should be substituted.

He said the electronic sirens would be unobtrusive, could be operated by either battery or electric power and also could be used as loudspeakers to help prevent panic.

No more was heard about the mechanical sirens — nine

Rains Wash Out Northern Bridges

Heavy rains have washed out two bridges on Highway 16 west of Terrace, the Department of Highways said today.

Few details were available here, but a spokesman said it is believed the bridges were small, wooden structures. The highway between Terrace and Prince Rupert was temporarily closed.

One of the bridges was seven miles west of Terrace and the other was at Scree Creek, nine miles west of the Bulkley Valley city.

of which have been in storage here for some two years. Scores more were sent to other cities by Ottawa.

But today's tender call looked as though the city lost its battle.

"There's nothing more we can add to our protest," said Mayor Scurrah. "We'll just have to wait to see what they put up."

IN 83RD YEAR

Noted Historian Dies After Fall

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Major Frederick V. Longstaff, well-known naval historian and authority on the history of Victoria and Esquimalt, died in Royal Jubilee Hospital early today.

He was 83 and underwent an operation Tuesday after a fall at his home last week in which he suffered a fractured hip.

Major Longstaff lived in a spacious, dignified home at 50 King George Terrace where he kept a remarkable collection of photos and records of early British Columbia, including the old Cariboo Highway.

An Imperial Army veteran, he came to Victoria from England in 1911 and was active in many phases of community life.

'GREAT LOSS'

"His death is a great loss to Victoria," said Miss E. Gilliland, his housekeeper for the past 18 years. "He was a most knowledgeable man, a scholar in the best sense."

Funeral services at Christ Church Cathedral Saturday

MAJOR LONGSTAFF great loss will be conducted by Dean Brian Whitlow. The cortege will leave Hayward's funeral chapel at 3:15 p.m. and the service will begin at 3:30 p.m. It will be followed by cremation.

NO CHILDREN

Major Longstaff had no children. His wife, Jennie, died in 1957 and he is survived by two brothers in Britain, Thomas L. and Gilbert, and three sisters.

A distinguished historian, he was the author of a history of Christ Church Cathedral, a history of HMCS Naden and a history of Esquimalt Harbor from its early beginnings.

NAVY LORE

He was closely associated with the Maritime Museum at Signal Hill and was a recognized authority on the Royal Navy and the Royal Canadian Navy. He belonged to the B.C. Historical Society, Victoria branch of the Canadian Authors' Association, the Alpine Club of Canada and the Union Club of Victoria.

Major Longstaff was also a life member of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans' Association, which he joined in 1917, and a life member of Oak Bay Progressive Conservative Association.

CHURCH DESIGN

He was a prominent member of Christ Church Cathedral and, as a trained architect, assisted in the design of St. John's Anglican Church and the James Bay Anglican Hall.

Born in Surrey, England, Major Longstaff took part in two federal election campaigns before he came to live in Victoria.

"We are indebted to him for his keen interest and constructive advice at all times," a spokesman for the Maritime Museum said today. "His death is a great loss to the city."

TOPICS OF THE DAY

The Victoria West Lawn Bowling Club has resumed its weekly card games of 500 to be held in the clubhouse on Esquimalt Road on Tuesdays at 8 p.m. Visitors are welcome.

ASK THE TIMES

Captain William K. Stirling of Winnipeg and Victoria has been promoted to the rank of major. An officer of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, Major Stirling will continue to serve at the Work Point garrison as a company commander.

HMCS Malahat will be visited Oct. 10 by reserve navy chief of staff Capt. J. C. Little. Later this month the Wharf Street reserve establishment's personnel will be given annual inspection by Commodore Paul Taylor, commanding officer of naval divisions.

Garden City United Church will hold its annual turkey dinner in the church hall next Monday, Thanksgiving Day. There will be two sittings, at 12:30 and 6 p.m.

ASK THE TIMES

Q.—Would you please tell us the exact amount of military personnel recorded killed in the bombing of Pearl Harbor?—M.E. and P.V.

A.—An exact compilation of casualties in time of war is almost impossible to make. Estimates of the military casualties at Pearl Harbour vary from 2,330 killed and 1,145 wounded to 2,898 killed and 879 wounded. The latest book on the Second World War gives the figure of 2,343 killed and 1,372 wounded.

Anyone asking a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Thefts totalling $300.60 at noon Tuesday were reported to city police at a downtown cafe and a private club.

While Eagles Club secretary S. E. Hills was out to lunch, someone entered his office at 751 View and took $215.00, mostly cash, when they pried open a cash drawer.

At Chris' Coffee Shop, Cook Street, someone ripped a change purse from a larger purse, property of employee Mrs. Stella Rhodes, 2903 Cameron, and made off with $85.

A former Victoria man already facing an Assize Court trial in connection with an alleged real estate fraud heard three more charges involving $9,500 in city police court today.

John Blair was on $2,000 cash bail to appear Oct. 16 in Assize Court.

He appeared in city police court and was remanded to next Wednesday for election on the additional charges, and bail meanwhile is set at $1,000, in addition to the former bond.

The John Stubbs Memorial School PTA will meet in the school auditorium on Tuesday at 8:00 p.m.

Dr. David Chabassol of Victoria University will speak on "Some of the Characteristic Problems of Adolescence."

Six Vancouver Island high school graduates are among 37 new officer cadets enrolled in HMCS Venture, the RCN junior officer training establishment at Esquimalt.

The school, open to students having a junior matriculation standing, is designed primarily to provide naval aviators for the fleet. The six Vancouver Islanders selected were Victorians, Charles Davis, 2275 Oak Bay Avenue; Norman Rhode, 502 Goldstream Avenue; Richard Teichrter, 1128 Esquimalt Road; Melvin Spotswood, 285 Helmecken Road; and Peter Jubb, 27 Government Street; and Thomas Rutherford of Campbell River.

A Guide captain to lead the company of the Madrona Division, Cadboro Bay, is urgently needed. There is a lieutenant to assist. Meetings are held on Wednesdays at St. George the Martyr Parish Hall.

For further information phone the Area Commissioner, Mrs. Bernard Shaw, EV 2-9709.

The New Imperial Social Club will hold a dance in the Newstead Hall, 734 Fort Street, next Saturday at 9 p.m. A general meeting will be held there at 8:15 p.m.

Members and wives of the Canadian National Veterans' Association will meet at the Knights of Pythias Hall, Cornsant Street, on Friday at 2 p.m. Dr. Clifford Carl of the Provincial Museum will be the guest speaker.

Two men were fined $250 each when they pleaded guilty in city police court today to charges of impaired driving Tuesday night.

W. Burton, Oliver Street, was checked after he drove through a red light at Fort and went up to 50 miles an hour on Oak Bay Avenue.

Frederick Etherington, Victoria, was in a rear-end collision at Hillside and Blanshard with a car driven by Bert Biny, 3380 Veteran.

Magistrate William Ostler suspended driver's licences of both accused.

UNITED APPEAL CAMPAIGN

Faculty Hears Facts of Combined Drive

The United Appeal helps more people in Greater Victoria than all others combined, campaign chairman Justin Harbord told faculty members of Victoria College Tuesday.

"And it does so at less expense than any other appeal," he said. "Unlike all others, it accepts not only the responsibility of raising the money—but also, through budget controls, it sees that this money is spent wisely in the overall community interest.

"Our problem this year is the same problem as last year and every year since the formation of Community Chest—and that is to persuade the people of this city to think of this as, not one appeal, but 22 appeals combined in one."

Mr. Harbord said some of the many criticisms of the Community Chest and the Appeal are simply "excuses given by members of the Pocketbook Protective League and need not be answered."

"Others, of course, come from perfectly sincere people who do not possess the facts, or have insufficient information."

"Most common criticisms are directed towards the YMCA and the Boy Scouts, two agencies which do a truly tremendous job with the youth of this community."

Pamper Those Busy Feet
With Revolutionary Shoes
By PENNY SAVER

With all the miles Penny "clocks in," looking for bargains, she's become quite an authority on what makes a good pair of shoes. For sheer comfort and wearability she hands a big bouquet to a new line that's becoming a best-seller in town.

Canadian-made from an original Italian process, these shoes feature a moulded sole that's made in five layers, each designed to win a woman's heart. Outer layer, a vulcanized rubber, is skid proof and waterproof. Next comes a cellular foam rubber insole, followed by a peltan layer that will prevent heat from hot sidewalks adding to wearer's discomfort.

Next comes a foam rubber layer for extra cushioning and flexibility, completed with a fine leather sole. Heels are all illusion shape and finished with a nylon tip. It's easy to understand why women are flocking to stock their wardrobes with this revolutionary line.

Soles will last as long as the uppers hold out. Manufacturers are so confident of this that they promise to replace with a new pair of shoes should any customer find otherwise.

Three saleswomen in a women's wear store use them exclusively, insisting that they're perfect for anyone who spends most of the day on her feet.

One store supplied their elevator girl with a pair, and she was so delighted with them that she came back and ordered some for her own personal use.

Shoes are available in two smart designs and come in shades of winter pine green, black, brown, duvet, Lancelot, regal blue, apache and black with a brown trim.

Sizes range from five to 10 in fittings from Bs to triple As. Shoes sell at $16.95.

If you're tired of having feet that protest the busy life you lead, give Penny a ring at EV 2-3131 for name of store.

Police Woman Uses
Womanly Approach

MONTREAL (CP) — Lois Lundell Higgins, director of the Crime Prevention Bureau of Illinois and president of the International Association of Women Police, said today a policewoman's "womanly approach" is her best weapon.

Interviewed at the International Association of Chiefs of Police conference, Mrs. Higgins said a police force is an organization developed for and by men.

A policewoman "should never compete, but fit herself into the existing program. And that calls for a lot of ingenuity."

A former municipal court worker, she became a policewoman because she felt she could do more outside the courthouse than she could behind her desk.

C. Thurber and Mrs. T. A. Leach. F. A. Fairclough, development manager of Victoria College Development Board, spoke on future plans for college and new buildings.

Twenty-eight Rallies—Mrs. G. A. Pole, president, told guests attending rally luncheon of Fairfield United Church Woman's Missionary Society that it was 28th held by the group. Receiving guests was Mrs. B. Wellwood. Mrs. C. Horwood gave devotions. Mrs. E. Beaumont, president of Victoria Presbytery of the United Church, reported on a school for leaders at Shawigan Lake. Program included two solos by Mrs. W. Sedgely and humorous reading by Mrs. E. Holtsman. Mrs. T. B. Lowe thanked speaker and artists.

ARE FACE CREAMS OVER-RATED?

Sometimes no, sometimes yes! A cream with fancy price, fancy pack age, plus extravagant promises of a "miracle," is obviously over-rating itself. There are no easy "miracles" in skin care—but you can get results with regular use of a cream that offers consistent quality and honest, pure ingredients. POND'S DRY SKIN CREAM, for instance. This famous cream, now with Allantoin, is made specifically to repair dry, aging skin. Allantoin (long known to doctors as a tissue-builder) floats off lifeless surface skin cells, speeds penetration of POND'S rich moisturized lanolin into-thirty tissues. Used regularly, POND'S DRY SKIN CREAM keeps skin smooth, soft, young-looking. Get POND'S DRY SKIN CREAM today. Reasonably priced, buy it in jar or tube, wherever cosmetics are sold. Adv.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Colak, 1431 St. Patrick Street, have announced the engagement of their only daughter, Margo Jean, to Mr. Frank Ernest Chambers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Chambers of Victoria. The marriage will take place Saturday, November 4, at 8 p.m., in St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay. (Filin Studio photos.)

Mrs. Lucia Swackhamer, Whitney Point, N.Y., has made these fine suggestions for which she is being awarded one of my exclusive pressing boards.

"Dear Eunice, 'Here is a suggestion on shortening the sleeves of children's coats: Remove any buttons on the sleeves. Measure up and mark with pins, the amount that needs taking up.'"

"Fold sleeve on that marked line, taking up the folded edge only, and pushing the rest of the lower sleeve and lining up into the sleeve. Baste around the sleeve on the new hemline. Carefully pull the lining back down and hem into place, being sure not to pull it down so far that the armhole would draw. Replace the buttons the same distance from finished hem."

"When having coat cleaned before putting away for the season, remove buttons and thread used to hem the lining. Pull back the hem in place as the original."

MRS. L. S. Please send your questions and suggestions to Sew Simple. Questions of the most general interest will be answered in this column, not personally. I have compiled a booklet of the 20 questions most frequently asked. If you would like to have this booklet send 25c and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Eunice Farmer in care of this newspaper.

DEAR ABBY

Get Moving, Sis

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Three months ago my sister (21) moved in with my husband and me. She came from a small town after graduation from business college, in hopes of finding a job, and then moving into a small apartment of her own. We were happy to have her, but now we are ready to get rid of her. She has applied for jobs in only two places, and has shown no interest in looking further. She sits in front of the television all day, and spends countless hours before the mirror trying out new hair-dos and make-up. She reads fashion magazines without hardly looking up. She helps around the house if I ask her, but it's always a half-hearted, sloppy job because she's afraid of chipping her nail polish. How can we get her to find a job and clear out of here?

HAD ENOUGH.

DEAR HAD: Inform your sister that, starting next Monday, she will be charged for room and board, so she had better get herself a job. I'll bet that moves her. If it doesn't, send her home. She's not grown up enough to be on her own.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were invited to dinner at the home of our son and his bride. This girl thinks she knows so much about how to set a table, but this is how her table was set: She used her best china, crystal and silver. And then she had individual WOODEN salad bowls on the table! Should I tell her that WOODEN salad bowls do not belong at an elegant table? Or should I have my son educate her?

NEW MOTHER-IN-LAW. DEAR NEW: I "wooden" mention it to her. Her table was properly set. P.S. A little wood on the table (right or wrong) will do less harm than the one on your shoulder.

DEAR ABBY: What do you do with a 17-year-old son who will not take his clothes off in front of other males because he is "ashamed"? I have tried to talk him out of it, but have done no good.

WORRIED DAD. DEAR DAD: This indicates an unhealthy attitude about his body. He needs help. Take him to a guidance clinic or to someone who is skilled in psychotherapy. (Your family physician can recommend an able person). A little help now might save him a great deal later.

"Are things rough?" Let Abby help you solve your problem. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope and send to Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

OF PERSONAL INTEREST

Reception Honors Artists

A reception in the Lansdowne Road home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Young will honor guest artists, Anne Harris, Wynne Shaw and John Dunbar, following the Musical Art Society's concert in Oak Bay Junior High School this evening. Mr. and Mrs. T. L. McMaster will assist Mr. and Mrs. Young in receiving guests. Presiding at the refreshment table will be Mrs. J. Ingram Smith and Mrs. J. Barracough. Servitors will be Mrs. J. Gillespie, Mrs. G. Wallis, Mrs. Dickson Falconer and Miss Kay Paulin. Mrs. G. Henderson Mead and Mrs. H. Thirlwall are in charge of arrangements.

Crystal and Pink Roses

Huge pink roses, massed in a crystal bowl, centred the table at a luncheon given by Mrs. Harold C. Johnston in her Monterey Avenue home on Tuesday. Dainty pink rosebuds were on each of the pink candles on silver candelabra that completed decor. Table was laid with a pink damask linen cloth. Luncheon was to honor the retiring executive of the Victoria Kiwanians, of which Mrs. Johnston is retiring president. Invited guests included Mrs. Martin Cave, Mrs. R. M. Williams, Mrs. C. J. Williams, Mrs. Charles Moore, Mrs. S. Britt, Mrs. Austin Curtis, Mrs. Glenn Hope, Mrs. A. Stewart, Mrs. Ray Rose, Mrs. Jack Lee, Mrs. R. Lochhead, Mrs. L. A. Gordon, Mrs. Denis Hagar, Miss E. L. Forbes and Mrs. D. A. Williams. St. Andrews-By-The-Sea.

Silver Tea

Many guests attended a silver tea, sponsored by St. John's Woman's Auxiliary, in "Kingsmount," the spacious Denison Road home of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Sullivan. Proceeds will be used for restoration fund of the church.

Receiving guests were Mrs. George Biddle, Mrs. T. Scott, Mrs. C. A. Campbell and Mrs. J. E. French. Presiding at the tea table, which was centred with a crystal bowl of gold and bronze flowers and golden candles were Mrs. Harold Sexton, Mrs. R. O. Taylor, Mrs. A. W. R. Ashley and Mrs. F. A. Goodwin.

Mrs. F. C. Milne was in charge of tea arrangements, assisted by auxiliary members. Girls of the junior auxiliary and the girls' auxiliary wore their uniforms and acted as servitors.

Mrs. L. Small convoked home cooking stall, assisted by Mrs. A. Thompson and Mrs. G. Candy. General convener was Mrs. W. Roskelley.

CLUB CALENDAR

Friday's Bride Feted by Friends

Miss Dorothy Williams and Mrs. Joyce Corp were co-hostesses at the former's Belmont Street home when friends gathered for a surprise shower in honor of Betty Kerr who is to be married Friday. A corsage of yellow roses was presented to the bride-elect and gifts were in a two-tier wedding cake. Invited guests included Mrs. M. Williams, Mrs. M. Lawson, Mrs. G. Jennings, Mrs. A. Akkerman, Mrs. D. Temple, Miss J. Mumford, Mrs. D. Eng, Mrs. E. Chapple, Mrs. A. Sanders, Mrs. M. O'Leary, Miss K. Graham, Mrs. M. Butterick, Miss W. Plummer, Mrs. G. Mann, Mrs. E. Mitchell, Mrs. E. Neilson and Mrs. W. Walker, Duncan.

GIFT OF CRYSTAL

Co-workers honored Miss Kerr recently at a surprise luncheon when members of the receipt control section of the Naval Supply Depot, HMC Dockyard, presented a gift of a crystal decanter, glasses and candle holders. Presentation was made by Mr. P. Strachan. Attending the luncheon were Miss L. Lee, Miss G. John, Mrs. L. Durand, Mrs. D. McCusky, Mrs. A. Hales, Mrs. J. Smith, Mrs. G. Eithier, Mrs. J. Smallwood, Miss S. Corbett, Miss J. Woolcock, Miss J. Gaunt, Messrs. J. Wickstrom, W. Whitehead, V. Falles and A. Greene.

Royal Canadian Legion Zone Council members honored Miss Kerr, a member of Victoria Ex-Service Women's Branch. Zone commander H. Priske presented her with a set of crystal glasses on behalf of council members.

The Wicklow Street home of Mrs. D. Eng was setting when members of Victoria Ex-Service Women's Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion gathered to honor the bride-elect. A corsage of pink carnations was presented to her with a crystal bowl, on behalf of branch members. Pink and white streamers decorated the living room and the tea table set was centred with a bride and groom overlooking a shower of happiness cake. Among those present were Mrs. P. Moorecroft, Mrs. A. Akkerman, Mrs. Mary Lawson, Mrs. D. Pert, Mrs. N. Mulally, Miss J. Mumford, Mrs. M. Butterick, Mrs. D. Robertson, Mrs. J. Corp, Mrs. M. Lindo, Miss D. Williams, Miss A. Falles and Mrs. E. Chapple.

Mr. and Mrs. James Baker Brown of Nanaimo wish to announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Eleanor Barraine, to Mr. William Allen Leslie, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Leslie of Calgary. The wedding will take place on November 3 at 8 p.m., in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church with Dr. J. L. W. McLean officiating. Attendants will be Miss Maureen Brown, Miss Shirley Sady, Miss Rita Ormish and as junior bridesmaid, Miss Diane Brown. Flower girl will be little Miss Janet Williams. The bride-elect is the granddaughter of Mrs. George Hughes, 2934 Foul Bay Road, Victoria. (Photo by Starr Photos.)

Mary Lynn Fraser Recent Bride

Houston-Beasley Wedding In Centennial Church

Wedding vows were recently exchanged by Heather Jean Beasley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Beasley of Victoria, and Lawrence Gerard Houston, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Houston also of Victoria.

Rev. S. J. Parsons officiated at the ceremony in Centennial United Church. Organist was Mrs. Margaret Wilmschurst. Solo. Church was decorated with fall flowers, while heather and satin ribbons marked guest pews.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length gown of white floating sheer over taffeta, with basque bodice, scooped neckline, and lily point sleeves. Swiss lace embroidery adorned the empire bodice and the front panel of the full hoop skirt which was slightly on train. Silk illusion veil was held with a crown of seed pearls and drop crystals. White stephanotis and Tallis man roses were in the bouquet. Identical gowns of emerald green faille, with matching green shoes and leather trimmed whimsy veil hats were chosen by the matron of honor, Mrs. Dorothy Creed; bridesmaid, Mrs. Marlene Thickett; bridesmaids, Misses Anne Smith and Nancy Mann, and junior bridesmaid, Miss Jeanie Houston. Bronze chrysanthemums were carried in their bouquets.

Best man was Dick Smith, and ushers were Martin Kenney, Terry Doherty, Ken Houston, and Allan Beasley.

The reception was held at the Golden Slipper Supper Club. A white three-tier cake surrounded by tulle centred the bride's table, with red Tallis man roses, Wilfred L. Gouge proposed the toast.

Leaving for a honeymoon in the United States, the bride wore a two-piece green and brown tweed suit with brown accessories. The couple will live in Victoria.

Wish to thank the hundreds of people from all over Greater Victoria whose enthusiasm made their new store opening such a success.

Institutes Discuss Divorce Laws

Revision of divorce laws was subject of one resolution passed by members of the South Vancouver Island Women's Institutes at recent annual conference held in Duncan. Conference also recommended that more surplus butter be made available to old age pensioners by script.

Other resolutions included request that more school textbooks, especially on history and geography, be written and published by Canadians; more legal protection of property of the mentally ill and less use of harmful sprays that contaminate food.

Mrs. D. C. Morton, wife of the reeve of Cowichan District, welcomed 200 delegates that attended from 23 institutes. Mr. J. O. Decker, past president of British Columbia Women's Institutes, and Mrs. P. Douglas, North Vancouver Island Women's Institutes, extended greetings.

H. D. Arnold, president of the British Columbia Federation of Agriculture, spoke on need to assist underprivileged countries and Miss Lorna Michael, home economist for the provincial department of agriculture, gave outline of new program to help women, ranging from the 4-H member to the established homemaker.

District conveners reported hundreds of articles knitted for the Unitarian Services Committee; refugee families adopted, visits to the Solarium, mental hospitals and shut-ins and other community services.

Conveners are Mrs. M. Feather, Cedar, cultural activities; Mrs. G. McGregor, Royal Oak, home economics; Mrs. E. Braithwaite, Cobble Hill, social welfare; Mrs. J. C. Jones, Esquimalt, citizenship; Mrs. A. W. Smith, Sooke, agriculture; and Miss Bea Hamilton, Salt Spring, publicity.

Tag on the breast of this oven-ready turkey indicates it is a top quality bird. Large turkeys like this one are so reasonably priced and in such excellent supply that it's easy to serve turkey for Thanksgiving dinner this year.

Thanksgiving Turkey

Canadian turkeys were never better. The plump, rounded breasts and meaty drumsticks are a far cry from some of the old-fashioned birds we used to think were good.

Along with changes in the turkey, however, go changes in cooking techniques.

Many homemakers in the old days used to add water to the roasting pan because they were never sure whether the turkey they bought was young and tender or not, and moist heat was, and still is, used to tenderize tougher meats. Nowadays, grade A or B young turkeys are available and there is no problem, so dry roasting is preferred by most good cooks. The only time one need use moisture in roasting turkey is if it is advertised and sold as a "yearling" or "mature" turkey.

CONSTANT QUALITY

Modern methods of freezing turkeys have helped to make uniform quality more generally available. These birds also are a far cry from the old-fashioned "cold storage" birds of not so long ago. Cold storage turkeys were frozen slowly; they had only the head and feathers removed and, further, more, they were not always held at a constant temperature so there was loss of quality and flavor. Today, the quick-frozen birds are processed rapidly to lock in all the good quality and flavor and stored at constant low temperatures until ready to ship them to your favorite meat counter.

This modern method of preparing turkeys is one reason we have such excellent birds available at Thanksgiving. All year long, turkey growers and processors all over Canada are doing everything possible to make the king of birds even more of a monarch to grace your feast days.

Even good turkey can be spoiled by improper cooking. If turkey is undercooked, the meat tends to be rubbery; if overcooked, it is apt to be dry. Slow roasting at 325 deg. F. is recommended. Use a shal-

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

You Can Have Your Baby and Keep Your Figure

Many women write to me saying that they are so happy about approaching motherhood, but that they do not want to lose their figures because of it. One letter says, "Can you tell me what to do now so that I will not lose my figure? I am two months pregnant. Most of my friends who have had children are now fat women, and they were slim before."

Lowman

It is unfair to blame your overweight on your baby, who cannot yet talk back. There is no reason for a woman to become obese just because she has a child on the way. Lots of them do and you can see why. You do need more food in order to nourish your baby as well as yourself. However, sometimes the idea that a woman is eating "for two" takes the brakes off self-discipline, and the prospective mother indulges in all sorts of rich and fattening foods.

Of course, you cannot diet during pregnancy, and you need more calories than usual. Especially you need a well-planned diet high in the essentials of good nutrition. But the little stranger does not need pastries, and neither do you!

You both require an uptake in calcium intake (milk, lean meat, eggs, whole grain products, and lots of fresh fruits and vegetables. These foods, eaten in reasonable amounts, will see you through pregnancy without post-pregnancy overweight.

You must have adequate nutrition to protect your own health as well as your baby's. Nature takes what is needed for the baby and you get what is left. However, follow your doctor's advice about holding your weight down. Overweight increases the chance of complications during pregnancy and delivery, and leaves you with a problem in reducing after your child arrives.

Too many women allow overweight to place a burden on them during pregnancy and afterwards.

If you would like to have my leaflet, No. 21, "Care During Pregnancy," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Sunday Film Fight Starts In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — The question of Sunday movies promises to become Vancouver's hottest civic issue since the fluoridation hassle of 1957-58.

With the December civic elections just two months off, battle lines have formed. Theatre men are sponsoring lobbies in theatre lobbies. In the churches churchgoers are signing petitions against movies on Sunday. Private citizens are writing city hall.

There didn't seem to be much interest until two weeks ago when city council voted 10-0 against putting the question to a plebiscite vote in December. But since then the letters and petitions for and against have been flooding city hall.

Mayor Tom Alsbury said that while he voted against the plebiscite and has not changed his view, he would support submitting the question to a vote of the people if there is genuine interest. All he had to do was look around.

22,000 IN FAVOR
In the last week more than 22,000 persons have signed petitions in theatre lobbies saying they favor Sunday movies. Almost 500 persons expressing opposition were signatories to three large petitions from church congregations and more are on the way.

In addition another 700 persons sent letters or put their names to other petitions on the subject.

And the B.C. Exhibitors' Association is writing council asking for permission to appear with "new information" and try to have council reconsider its decision against a plebiscite.

Even before the drive began, opinions received at city hall were running strongly in favor of Sunday movies. The mayor's office had received 96 letters since last week from individuals favoring either a plebiscite or expressing a wish for Sunday films. Only 13 were opposed.

The build-up of interest was reminiscent of 1957 when forces for and against fluoridation of the city's water supply locked horns. In a plebiscite that year the "yes" vote outnumbered the "no" vote by more than 10,000 but not by a sufficient margin to carry the plebiscite.

Later two aldermen who went against instructions of council and voted against fluoridation on the Greater Vancouver water board, were threatened for a time with dismissal from the board. But the hullabaloo died down and the following year, Vancouver voters overwhelmingly rejected fluoridation.

SPORT FIGHT RECALLED
The Sunday movie fight also is reminiscent of the 1957 battle for Sunday sport for Vancouver. The voters supported a plebiscite for commercial Sunday sport between 1:30 p.m. and 6 p.m., but didn't get it right away.

The city asked the provincial government to amend the city charter to permit it. The provincial government asked the courts to decide if such a change was legal. The courts ruled it was and Vancouver now has had commercial Sunday sport since 1958.

Scottish Comic Featured
Scotland's newest comedy sensation, Jimmy Warren, direct from Glasgow's Pavilion Theatre, will give Victoria a taste of the latest in Scottish wit at the Royal Theatre on Oct. 9 at 8:30 p.m.

He is heading the group of Scottish stars appearing this year on Neil Kirk's ever popular, White-Heather Concert Party.

Scotland's foremost tenor and TV personality, Kenneth McKellar, will be returning with the group, as will Duncan Macrae, character satirist and actor, who played in such popular movies as Tight Little Island and Tunes of Glory.

ADDED ARTISTS
Also appearing on the program will be Moira Anderson, the celebrated soprano; Bobby MacLeod with his accordion, and Denis Woodford at the piano.

The group is being sponsored by the St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society of Victoria. Tickets will be on sale at Eaton's Oct. 2 to 7 from 10 to 5 p.m. and at the theatre on Monday, Oct. 9.

BERNHARDT'S CROWN?

Grecian Glory On City Stage

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Through the genius of a great American poet—Robinson Jeffers—and a great international actress—Dame Judith Anderson—Victoria theatre lovers were given a glimpse, Tuesday night, of the glory that is Grecian drama.

Dame Judith was magnificent, a towering tragedienne, possibly the sole inheritor in our time of the crown of Bernhardt.

She possessed the stage of the Royal Theatre, filling the air with the sound of her anguish, exploring with awe some virtuosity all the emotions of the wronged, the cunning, the conscience-struck.

Assisted by actor-writer William Roerich—a tall, distinguished-looking man and a competent foil for Dame Judith—the actress appeared in graceful, classic gowns against a massive stone doorway and flight of steps that served the two Greek plays as well as it did Macbeth.

OPEN TERROR

Clytemnestra's speech to the populace after the murder of her husband, King Agamemnon, was wonderfully wrought; filled with persuasions and sophistries, boldness and challenge, all masking a deep inner apprehension that flared momentarily into open terror, as when an imagined spear was hurled from amongst the imagined crowd.

This scene, from Jeffers' "Tower Beyond Tragedy" preceded the real meat of the program, which was the nearly complete "Medea."

LEGENDARY EPISODE

Judith Anderson's "Medea" has become one of the legendary episodes of the American theatre, and it is undoubtedly a privilege to witness this history-making portrayal even in its truncated version.

Here her real stature as one of the rare classical actresses of the day, came into full focus. Here was the breath and economy of gesture, the unexampled mobility and significance in use of the body, the splendor of wide ranging movement about the stage.

The barbaric savagery of Medea, a wounded creature lashed out with ruthless cruelty at those who have destroyed her, was conveyed in strident speech, hoarse whisper, angular, unbecoming postures, sudden, violent changes of mood and semblance.

In contrast, Macbeth, out of context—Dame Judith plunged into the letter scene at the outset of the evening with only a brief introduction from Roerich—was flat and uninspiring.

Lady Macbeth is also one of the actress' great roles but even her genius is not equal to the task of creating without preamble the weird, doomful atmosphere that prickles the spine as Duncan's doom takes shape in her ladyship's mind.

Macbeth was further hampered by unskilled and distracting operation of a spotlight from the back of the theatre.

Audibility was also a trouble throughout the evening. All things considered, however, I cannot help wondering if our electronically-attuned ears have not lost some of their fineness.

Star Left $8 Million

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Actress Marlon Davies left an estate in excess of $8,000,000, according to a will and codicil filed in court Tuesday.

The actress, who died of cancer Sept. 22, at 63, named as principal heirs her husband, Capt. Horace Brown Jr.; her sister Rose; a nephew, actor Charles Lederer, and a niece, wife of actor Arthur (Dagwood) Lake.

Regrets, Sympathy For Tony

LONDON (Reuters)—Disappointment and regret were the overwhelming sentiments in the British press today on the news that commoner Antony Armstrong-Jones has been given a title.

The Queen Tuesday bestowed the title of Earl of Snowdon on the 31-year-old former society photographer who married Princess Margaret last year. Margaret is expecting her first baby soon.

The Earlom of Snowdon was chosen to note Armstrong-Jones' Welsh origins. Snowdon is the highest mountain 3,560 feet in Wales and is in County Ceredigionshire, where the new earl's father, Roald Armstrong-Jones, is a county deputy lieutenant, an honorary title.

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express reproduced a gazette-style reference to Snowdon, describing its position, height and altitude and headlined the announcement Tony the Mountain Peer.

COOL TO TITLE?

But The Daily Mirror in a front-page editorial says: "The Mirror has a feeling—despite official indications to the contrary—that he did not really want this title."

"We have a feeling that he would much prefer to go on being known as Mr. Antony Armstrong-Jones."

"This newspaper has every sympathy with this very likeable and unassuming bloke."

"And because we think he will take it as a compliment it is certainly intended to be. The Mirror will continue to refer to him as Mr. Jones. Or, better still, as Tony."

The Guardian says in an editorial that "commoners may feel a tinge of disappointment that the plain, honest Mr. Armstrong-Jones has had a title thrust upon him."

The Daily Sketch depicts Armstrong-Jones in an earl's regalia with the heading Lord Tony. It's a pity.

Under the editorial banner of No Honor the Communist Daily Worker asks: "What, may we ask, has he done to achieve this distinction? Has it been given for proficiency in parenthood? If so, he still needs to prove himself."

The International Civil Aviation Organization listed 857 passenger deaths on scheduled air services in 1960.

FILM CODE EASED ON SEX

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The motion picture industry changed its production code Tuesday to permit the subject of sex deviation on the screen.

The new ruling would permit approval of the recently filmed "Children's Hour," which deals with lesbianism.

Tuesday's change in the code is the most dramatic yet in a five-year campaign to allow movie-makers to treat controversial subjects with the same freedom as other media, and it follows recent U.S. Supreme Court rulings forbidding censorship of the screen.

Documentary Film on Cuba Delayed, Not Killed, Says CBC

OTTAWA (UPI)—The CBC denied Tuesday it killed an hour-long documentary on Cuba scheduled for showing in five countries for fear of offending U.S. viewers.

A spokesman for the publicly-owned corporation said the program would be shown at a later date.

"The CBC's decision to postpone delivery is based on the view that the program does not present a complete enough picture of the complex Cuban situation," he said.

"It is hoped that additional weeks of preparation will enable us to complete the production for distribution to other members of Interrel."

Interrel is an organization composed of broadcasting companies in Canada, the U.S., England, France and Australia which exchanges programs.

The CBC's "Cuba" was one of its contributions.

The spokesman declined to say if the side of the story emphasized in the documentary had been the pro-Castro side.

"I wouldn't like to comment on that," he said.

The issue came to light when a Toronto reporter wrote that head office officials killed the program because they believed it might show the Americans in a bad light.

"There can be no question the cancellation of the show was motivated by political considerations," he wrote.

'Keep H-Bomb, Stop A-Tests'

BLACKPOOL, Eng. (CP)—George Brown, deputy leader of Britain's Labor Party, today condemned the resumption of nuclear tests by Russia and the United States but rejected pressure for Britain to give up the bomb.

IN MOSCOW—Former British prime minister Earl Attlee and a party of British politicians have arrived in the Soviet capital to attend an international parliamentarians' meeting on disarmament.

Big Names Linked To Payoff

QUEBEC (CP)—A witness said Tuesday he received a $600 kickback directly from the office of the late premier Maurice Duplessis, and three more testified they received kickbacks from Gerald Martineau, member of the Legislative Council—Quebec's Upper House.

The witnesses were among 11 who testified at the resumption of the Salvas royal commission into purchasing practices of the Union Nationale government. The sittings resumed following the summer layoff and a postponement for the Union Nationale party convention here last month.

Leo Roy, 46-year-old salesman from Cape-de-la-Madeleine, testified he received a $600 cheque made out by Sico Paint Company and sent by Mr. Duplessis' office.

He said he needed money and went to see two or three political figures in the Trois-Rivières region, "including the premier of the time."

"I went and told them my story as I'm telling you now and received the cheques," he said.

Lorenzo Audet, 63, manager of La Photographie Artistique, Quebec, said between 1955 and 1958 he received $3,367 in kickbacks in the form of cheques drawn on Sico Paint Company, Brandram-Henderson Ltd. and Automotive Products.

HANDLED CHEQUE

He said Mr. Martineau, Union Nationale party treasurer, had handed him a cheque for $1,500 made out by Brandram-Henderson.

"I think it was a reward for working on elections," said Audet.

Maurice Tetu, a commercial traveller from suburban Charlebourg, said he wrote Mr. Martineau for help explaining he had a son in the seminary and several other children to care for.

He said he received kickbacks for $300 from Sico, $617 from Automotive Products and $1,317 from Charles Cusson Limitee. He said he had nothing to do with any of these companies.

SOVIET PHOTO SHOWS NEW OCEAN CREATURE

LONDON (Reuters)—The Soviet newspaper Pravda today published a photograph of the ocean bed showing what it called "a gigantic trace of an animal so far unknown to science," the Soviet news agency Tass reported.

It said the photograph was taken nearly 10,000 feet down by the staff of the Soviet research ship Vityaz. No further details were given.

The agency did not say exactly where on the sea floor the picture was taken. But it said the Vityaz was now on its 33rd cruise, having covered 30,000 miles in the Indian Ocean.

Fulbright Urges 'Compromise'

WASHINGTON (CP)—Senator William Fulbright says he will support de facto recognition of the East German Communist regime if other conditions for a Berlin settlement proved satisfactory.

The chairman of the Senate foreign policy said in an interview the Western powers should seek a compromise with Russia that would enable West Berlin to remain free "under the best guarantees we can get."

He also advocated location in West Berlin of some United Nations agencies, such as the World Health Organization or the Food and Agricultural Organization, so that non-aligned countries attending such meetings could see the contrast between East and West Berlin.

The Arkansas Democrat, whose recent statements on Berlin aroused resentment in the state department, reiterated his view that the Kennedy administration and the previous Eisenhower administration had been "damned slow" in attempting to resolve the Berlin dispute with Russia.

State department officials privately deplored Fulbright's statements and maintained they may undermine the Western negotiating position and embarrass the Kennedy administration. Made aware of state department reaction, Fulbright said he had no intention of prejudicing current negotiations. He was merely expressing a personal view, mainly on the origin of the dispute.

Asked whether his statement did not provide the Russians with another argument for challenging the Western position in Berlin, Fulbright said in the interview there is no question but that Western troops are in West Berlin legally and that they have legal rights to use ground corridors for their own supplies.

But the extent of this legal right and how it could be applied to civilian traffic had been left "fuzzy" at the occupation start. It was only as part of the settlement of the 1948 blockade that Western air rights were made fully and legally clear, Fulbright said.

You can see the North should bid three hearts over West's takebid bid. South will go to four hearts if there will be no trouble about making the contract.

There, also, is plenty of reason in back of the three-heart bid. The spade raise has given some indication South's no-trump does not include particularly r  b   spade holding. Of course, three hearts is a trifle in the nature of an overbid, but certainly not a serious overbid.

So much for second-guessing. If North player made the conservative bid of three no-trump, he had nothing over.

RCMP Book Helps Avoid 'Bad Paper'

Helps Avoid 'Bad Paper'

The sixth booklet in a series entitled "Crime in Your Community" now has been prepared by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

The sixth booklet, named "Bad Paper," is directed mainly to the merchants and businessmen whose establishments are the more lucrative targets of

The book describes methods of "bad paper" operators and the means by which they may be stopped.

The RCMP have made arrangements for the general distribution of the manual through the various RCMP divisions across the country.

The police believe that by conscientious use of the booklets in the "Crime in Your Community" series, many efforts of the criminal may be frustrated or thwarted.

U.S. NEGLECTS PUBLIC GOOD SAYS EDUCATOR

'Free Enterprise Worship'

VANCOUVER (CP)—The United States is perpetuating an unrealistic worship of free enterprise, says Dr. James F. Nickerson, dean of education at Montana State College.

Dr. Nickerson, speaking to the B.C. School Trustees Association convention Monday night, also said his countrymen, through fear and reluctance, have discouraged dissent and choked honest debate.

As a result, he said, "it is probable that my country was never less informed on matters directly affecting its life and death than now."

He said worship of free enterprise and individualism has resulted in neglecting the public good. "It has led, indeed, to the neglect of action for our survival."

The American economy is wonderfully constructed to satisfy the demands of individuals for labor-saving devices and luxuries, he said.

But it "is only poorly constructed to do what so plainly needs to be done about the blight of our cities, the inadequacies of education, the need for recreational facilities, the crowding of roads and the high incidence of crime and delinquency."

'INFERNAL TRIANGLE'

View Royal Pursues Boom Battle Royal

By FRANK RUTTER.

An infernal triangle is playing a concerto of errors in Esquimalt Harbor.

It rose to a crescendo Tuesday when a piledriver pulled out a dolphin which had been driven in the wrong place for a log booming ground.

The three sides of the triangle are:

The B.C. government, which granted a lease to a group of lumber companies and denied another lease;

The Greater Victoria Mill Operators Association, which is trying to put log booms on its lease and wanted the second lease;

The shoreline residents of View Royal, who have been fighting both leases because they say logs will ruin their harbor, view, and sports.

Having blocked the bid for a new lease by sheer volume of protest, the residents now are trying for cancellation of the existing lease.

To add to the complication, they contended, at one stage, it didn't even exist, and had been cancelled.

After an interview with Lands Minister Ray Williston Monday which nearly came to blows, they conceded proof existed that the lease was valid.

But the plot has thickened to a consistency too indigestible even for politicians.

BOUNDARIES

Joe Sutherland, chairman of the Upper Esquimalt Harbor dunt.

Protection Association, said he has extracted a promise from Mr. Williston that the lease would be cancelled if the lumber companies violated its boundaries.

He then produced proof that this had happened.

A dolphin, which was installed a week ago Monday despite an attempted blockade by a women's brigade of pickets in rowboats, was about 100 feet outside the lease boundary.

Mr. Williston immediately telephoned the mill operators and told them to move the dolphin.

CANCEL LEASE

But, says Mr. Sutherland, this is not what the minister promised. He promised he would cancel the lease if it was violated.

A spokesman for the mill operators admits that the dolphin was misplaced.

But—and this is the bitter finale—he says it was misplaced because someone moved the surveyors' markers along the lease boundary.

"We know this is what happened. But I can't say for sure who did it," he said.

"The surveyor is most upset. When he checked, the markers he put in before the dolphin was installed, he found they had been moved."

So the log saga ends, for the time being anyway, a who-

Other classes starting at the YWCA within the next few days include auto mechanics, bridge, millinery, dress designing and sewing, swimming, gardening, hostess class, and housewives' holiday.

Conversational French classes and German classes will be held respectively on Thursday and Friday for boys and girls from 9-13 years old.

One hundred Y-Teens, along with staff members, attended a conference at Camp Thunderbird at Sooke last weekend.

B.C. Company Loses Claim To Petroleum, Gas Rights

OTTAWA (CP)—Crows Nest Pass Coal Company of British Columbia failed Tuesday in a bid to obtain ownership of petroleum and natural gas on company property in the Kootenay district of southwestern B.C.

The Supreme Court of Canada in a unanimous judgment upheld decisions of the B.C.

Supreme and Appeal courts granting ownership of the petroleum and natural gas to the provincial government.

The company acquired the property under Crown grant in 1899. Under this agreement "any minerals, precious or base, other than coal" were reserved for the Crown.

The grant does not mention petroleum or natural gas, referring only to any minerals, precious or base, other than coal. The company contended that the purpose and effect of the grant of the land was to include petroleum and natural gas.

In the B.C. Supreme Court the trial judge held that the words "any minerals, precious or base other than coal" include petroleum and natural gas.

WEATHER SWITCH STUMPS EXPERTS

ROME (AP)—The earth has been getting gradually warmer since 1900, but now wide reaches from Soviet Siberia to Greenland are getting colder. Climate experts don't know why.

Meteorologists and climatologists here for the world meteorological organization meeting say the pattern is so mottled they cannot tell even if a trend to warmer or cooler climate has set in.

Dr. J. Murray Mitchell, climatologist with the U.S. Weather Bureau, said the United States still is warming up along with Central Europe and the Pacific coast of Asia. "Some places are getting colder—the Kurile (Kamchatka) Peninsula of Russia and parts of Canada, Greenland and Alaska," he told reporters. "But it's too early yet to tell if a trend in that direction has started."

Mitchell and two British colleagues discussed with reporters Tuesday what came up at the first technical session of the six-day gathering.

R. G. Verryard, climatologist with the British meteorological service, said the warming trend since 1900 was greatest around the Arctic.

Verryard said barley now grows much farther north in Iceland and Canada. Soviet Arctic ports once blocked by ice half the year are now closed only three months annually, and codfish have emigrated to Greenland, where they were almost unknown before 1930.

ask Andy

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia, and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Paul Eichhoff, age 13, of Steamboat Rock, Iowa, for his question:

How Long Does the Bald Eagle Live?

Let's not call this magnificent bird the bald eagle, for he is not bald at all. His splendid head is covered with a cap of white feathers. As he flies high, so high in the sky, the sun may glint on his snowy head and for a fleeting moment he may seem to be bald. He is, of course, the national emblem of the United States, properly known as the American eagle.

The young eaglet is hatched in a high nest made of branches and lined with soft grass and leaves. He may be a twin or one of a set of triplets. At first he is a hungry ball of pale, silky down and his parents are kept busy stuffing food into his wide open bill. Papa swoops down on wings maybe seven feet wide. Mama is somewhat larger and heavier.

Studies Up to Three Years

After a few weeks of loving care from his parents, junior has grown a coat of dark brown feathers. Soon he learns to spread his wings and his dutiful parents teach him how to fly. His education includes classes in fishing and the hunting of small game. He studies and practices eaglecraft for two or three years and all this time he is clothed in his dark brown plumage.

At last he is an adult. White feathers appear on his legs. Stiff white pinions appear on his tail. And the brown feathers on his head and face are replaced with the snowy white cap. Soon he will find a mate and the pair of them will select a site for their nest or aerie. Year after year they will return to the nest to bring up a brood of royal children. Each year a few more sticks and a new lining will be added

Bingo Probe Ordered By Bonner

Attorney-General Bonner said Tuesday he has ordered an inquiry into a New Westminster bingo game.

The attorney-general referred to the operation of Henderson Handicapped Association and said he has asked Arthur H. Hall, registrar of companies, to look into points raised in a letter from the Better Business Bureau.

Mr. Bonner said the United Good Neighbor Fund executive director, Bill Wilson of New Westminster, had also promised to send a letter to him about the operation, but the attorney-general had not yet seen this letter.

LITTLE HELP

Mr. Wilson said last week the bingo operation does little to aid the handicapped. He said the B.C. Societies Act is ineffective in controlling such operations and he called for stricter legislation.

Basil G. Henderson, operator of the game, said the operation had grossed $364,000 in two years but most of this was spent on salaries, prizes and operating costs. Some $50,000 was realized for charitable work.

BACKACHE AND RHEUMATISM PAIN

After 30, many women and men are made miserable by common backache, muscle aches, nerve pain and rheumatism. These pains can be relieved by the use of a small, simple, and effective device called the "Cervical Collar". It is a small, light, and comfortable collar that fits around the neck and shoulders, and provides a gentle, constant heat to the affected areas. It is a real relief for many people suffering from these painful conditions.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Want to get rich and famous, young man? Study jokes!

Morey Amsterdam used to be a good TV and cafe comic around here but now he's mostly at Desilu Cahuenga studios in Hollywood with a sign in his dressing room that says, "Jokes, Anyone?"

"Danny Thomas phoned wanting a joke for Pat Carroll about somebody eating a lot," Morey told me at the Stage Delicatessen on sort of a triumphal return to Broadway.

"I threw him 10 real fast. His stomach has no memory. 'If food was money, he'd have the richest stomach in town.' All those."

Morey's co-starring with Rosemary in the new Dick Van Dyke TV show. He's always spouting jokes—for free—to Jack Benny, Joey Bishop, Andy Griffith and other neighbors at Desilu. He'll build a Beverly Hills mansion named "The House That Jokes Built."

In the TV warmup, Morey asks the audience just for one word.

"A guy says 'horses.' I'll say 'If there were more horses, our country'd be stabilized.' A guy says 'water glass.' I put two tumblers on my head and say, 'You can't hit a fellow with glasses on.'"

Now don't knock it. Morey's loaded. And California needs him in these TV times.

Morey comes originally from California but he studied jokes in Chicago where, he says, there are lots of them, and also in a little downstairs saloon here in New York where he billed himself "the funniest feller in any cellar."

He went to college in California—UCLA yet—and you can imagine the thousands of jokes he has about that place.

I phoned Betty Furness about the rumor she might be marrying Dave Garroway. "Oh, please!" she said. "Whoever said that gets the award for conclusion-jumping. We had dinner once. (But thanks for checking)"

Rosemary Clooney's final word about the "Telephone Hour" row: "I suppose a company doesn't worry about a gal singing love songs when it's collecting all those phone bills every month."

THE MIDNIGHT EARL: Martha Raye insists she won't work the cafes any more, wants to do a B'way show after her "Jumbo" film with Jimmy Durante. Eddie Bracken says he'll make more money with tent theatres in Hawaii and Puerto Rico than

Persecution Might Develop Culture

By LES MILLIN
Times College Correspondent

A century of persecution might be the making of Canada, culturally.

Canada has a culture, not necessarily artistic or literary, and it consists of being a Canadian.

Victory Seen For Gaitskell

BLACKPOOL, England (CP)—Britain's Labor party Tuesday showed signs of pulling itself together after years of argument over the nationalization issue.

The Labor party conference approved for the first time a document that does not call for outright nationalization of all important industries. By doing this, the majority of the delegates finally accepted the fact that private enterprise has an important role to play in a socialist society.

DR. J. D. PETER
... ex-South African

No country ever got a culture by determining to get one. These are some of the views of Dr. John D. Peter, a former South African now attached to Victoria College's department of English.

An associate professor, he is the author of two scholarly works, one on Milton and one on the Renaissance. In Victoria, he plans to write fiction.

"The prospective view of culture," he says, "is all wrong. No country gets one by saying, 'all right, as of this morning we'll have culture.'"

"You can't buy culture, you see."

"Giving a writer or an artist enough money to live on for a year so that he will be free to write or paint is fine as long as the writer is the kind who will work under those conditions. But you have to expect to make some mistakes."

"A century of persecution might be just the thing to get Canadian artists and writers moving. It would give them what they need—something of immediate concern."

"For the last 20 years, English-speaking South Africans have become progressively uneasy about their environment, and this has done a great deal to improve the literature of the country. It has supplied a passionate concern over injustice.

"Canada has a culture. It is not necessarily literary or artistic."

"It consists of being a Canadian."

500,000-Volt Line To Undergo Tests

PORTLAND (AP)—A transmission line that will handle up to 500,000 volts of electric power is being installed experimentally by Bonneville Power Administration in one of its 345,000-volt lines near Sandy, Ore.

Administrator Charles F. Luce said it was the first of its size west of the Rockies. Highest voltage present regional lines will carry is 345,000, he said.

'Protect Buyers Of Drugs'

MONTREAL (CP)—A brief urging that a government published pamphlet on drugs be made available to the public was presented Monday at the restrictive trade practices commission's inquiry into drug prices.

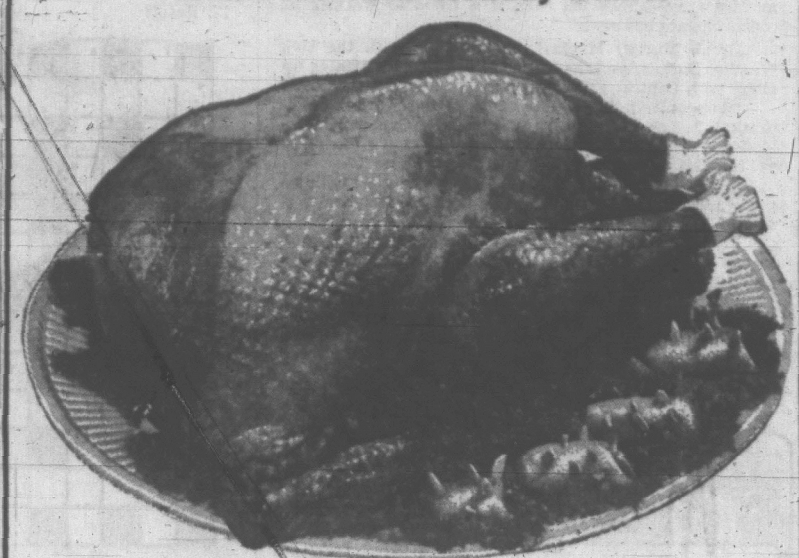

Mrs. E. B. Sims, president of a Quebec branch of the Canadian Association of Consumers, said fields where buying is done in "haste and fear" need extra protection.

A pamphlet would fill a gap in the public's knowledge of drugs and enable it to save money by ordering drugs by generic name rather than brand name.

NO. 17 BY RUSSIANS 'SEVERAL MEGATONS'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union fired a big nuclear explosion today, described by the United States Atomic Energy Commission as "on the order of several megatons."

A megaton is the equivalent of 1,000,000 tons of TNT.

Soviets Snub Chiang Envoy

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Nationalist China warned today that the United Nations will be wrecked if it bows to demands of "international bullies" and admits countries disqualified by the spirit and letter of the UN charter.

The warning came from Foreign Minister Shen Chiang-huan, who told the 100-nation General Assembly "appeasement is very much in the air." He did not mention Red China specifically, but the question of seating Red China is on the agenda for debate later in the current session.

LIBERATION STILL AIM

Shen repeated Nationalist China's promise to liberate the Chinese mainland "if the opportunity presents itself." The Chiang Kai-shek government now rules only Formosa.

Shen asserted the UN is "in danger of being perverted to serve the interest of powerful war-makers and international bullies."

"There are delegations in this assembly," he said, "who are bent on strengthening the forces of evil by adding to United Nations membership those who are clearly not qualified by the spirit and letter of the charter... if they are allowed to have their way, then the era of collective aggression, not to collective security, is upon us."

"Unless the majority of the state members accept the reality of the danger and unite their efforts to meet it, the United Nations is destined to go the way of the League of Nations."

SOVIET CREATION.

Shen told the assembly the Berlin crisis is a deliberate Soviet creation and declared that in Asia both Laos and South Viet Nam are menaced by communism.

He also accused the Soviet Union of trying to undermine the UN by the tactic of replacing the office of secretary-general with a three-man directorate.

"On an issue involving the very existence of the United Nations," he said, "there can be no neutralists or bystanders."

He said the Communists have no more love for neutralism than they have for capitalism, but that they are encouraging it in the hope of turning it to their advantage.

Mars Canals Made by Man?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A research chemist said today the canals of Mars are so like a man-made rail network and so unlike ordinary geological cracks they raise the possibility the planet may be inhabited.

The chemist, Wells Alan Webb of Berkeley, Calif., said that because the canals raise the possibility of a prior civilization, any attempt to send manned expeditions to Mars should be preceded by unmanned probes that could "probe a reaction" and detect any form of intelligent life that may exist.

E. Germans Squeezed

BERLIN (UPI) — The Communist Party today told East Germans they still have to tighten their belts still more to pay the cost of defence preparations.

It announced another postponement of the plan to cut back on West Germany's standard of living.

But top RCMP officials would not say anything about it today.

They are to decide if the charge will be pressed, or dropped.

An official of the Attorney General's department confirmed that a charge of driving without due care and attention was laid by a Kamloops RCMP constable last Friday.

Mr. Gaglardi has been convicted of five traffic offences since 1957.

If convicted again his licence could be suspended.

A report on the case is being sent from Kamloops RCMP division to B.C. headquarters in Victoria.

The alleged offence occurred on the Trans-Canada Highway Friday near Savaria, 26 miles from Kamloops, Mr. Gaglardi's home town.

Superintendent J. B. Harris of the Kamloops division confirmed today "We have been making a follow-up investigation of the thing."

He would give no details.

Assistant Commissioner Douglas Forrest, RCMP chief in B.C., would not say one word about the case.

"I'll decline to comment," he said. Asked when he would

ORDERED BACK to Washington today, U.S. ambassador to Russia Llewellyn Thompson is expected to be an added adviser in the preliminary Soviet-American talks between American State Secretary Rusk and Foreign Minister Gromyko of Russia. He'll also be on hand when President Kennedy meets Gromyko Friday.

Talk Set For JFK, Gromyko

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko will meet here late Friday afternoon for a crucial talk that may determine whether negotiations over Berlin are possible.

The White House announced today that the president and Gromyko will confer at 5 p.m. EDT (1 p.m. PST) Friday.

The talk was set up as a result of encouraging progress made in three earlier discussions between Gromyko and Secretary of State Dean Rusk in New York last week.

Although White House press secretary Pierre Salinger refused to discuss the subject matter of the Friday conference, it obviously concerned the Berlin negotiations, and the next steps to be taken by both sides.

Gromyko and Rusk had planned to meet a fourth time in Washington—but Salinger said he did not know whether this would occur before the conference with Kennedy.

Salinger would not say whether the Soviet or American side initiated the White House meeting.

U.S. officials regard the meeting as crucial, but not in terms of whether concrete decisions will be reached. These are not expected.

The importance of the meeting will lie in the reactions which follow.

It probably will be the last of Gromyko's meetings with U.S. officials before he returns to Moscow this weekend to report to Premier Khrushchev on the American position.

comment, he said, "I doubt before Friday."

He would not say why he was waiting until Friday.

Superintendent F. S. Spalding of the Victoria detachment said he was awaiting the Kamloops report. He said he might be able to make a statement Thursday.

The official in the Attorney General's department, however, said the department had been notified of the charge as a matter of courtesy.

But there had been no RCMP request for guidance on proceeding with it. If there is

HOWARD, SKOWRON BLAST HOMERS

Whitey Ford Hurls Two-Hitter

BY OSCAR FRALEY
NEW YORK (UPI)—Stubby Whitey Ford's record-setting pitching and the most thunderous home run bats in baseball history swept the New York Yankees to a 2-0 triumph over the Cincinnati Reds in the opening game of the World Series today.

The bludgeons which bashed an all-time high of 240 home runs this year roared the Yankee victory tune when Elston Howard clipped a fourth-inning clout into the lower right-field stands and Moose Skowron lofted a towering shot into the left-field stands in the sixth inning.

Ford, the ice water blond with an eye on the record books, took care of the Reds with a two-hit shutout—his third consecutive scoreless effort in World Series play and his unprecedented eighth win in the classic.

The Yankees did it without ailing Mickey Mantle as they hung the defeat on handsome young Jim O'Toole, although he handcufted home run king Roger Maris before retiring for a pinch-hitter after giving up six hits and two runs in seven innings.

It was a heart-breaking defeat for the Reds, whose scorned defence contributed two sparkling plays; but on this chill gray day they simply were unable to match that Yankee power and the south-paw slants of the chunky Ford before a crowd of 62,397 fans.

FORD'S DAY

And it was Ford's day all the way, even the weather conspiring to help the heat-hating 32-year-old who compiled his greatest record this season with 25 victories. For when it was over Whitey had:

—Become the first man to win eight series games, leaving behind him former Yankee greats Red Ruffing and Allie Reynolds—each with seven.

—Run his record of all-time series strikeouts to 69 by fanning six of the Reds.

—In pitching his third consecutive series shutout, stood only two and two-thirds innings away from the all-time classic mark set by Babe Ruth in 1916 and 1918 when he was a pitcher with the Boston Red Sox.

He had them in his pocket all the way, the futilely swinging Reds getting only three balls out of the infield and getting only one of their three base runners to second base.

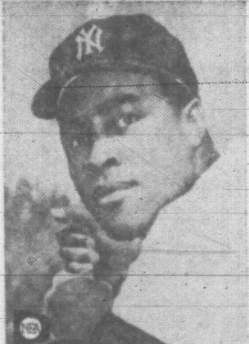

On the other hand the tight-lipped O'Toole, who admitted that he would "have butterflies" until after he got his first hit out, was in an immediate jam as he went to the mound. Bobby Richardson greeted him with a single to left and Tony Kubek walked on four straight pitches.

Then up came Maris, who hit more home runs in one season than any man in history. But O'Toole met the challenge by getting him to pop up and the runners held again when Howard flied to short centre.

O'Toole faltered briefly as he walked Skowron to fill the bases but then got Yogi Berra, appearing in his record 69th series game, to pop up on a breathless 3-and-2 pitch.

O'Toole faced more trouble in the second when Richardson chopped a single into the hole on which Kasko had no play. Kubek "popped up but then

Injured Boy Lifted From Cave

RISEING FAWN, Ga. (AP)—

An injured teen-age boy was lifted by stretcher from a crevasse in a mountain cave today after lying semi-conscious about nine hours on a ledge about 50 feet below the cave's floor.

He was taken to hospital after rescue workers spent a grueling two hours getting him out of the narrow cave. His condition did not appear critical.

The boy, 15-year-old Ronnie Reese, was on a ledge halfway down a 100-foot crevasse where he fell shortly after dark Tuesday while exploring the cave with three other youths.

Rescue operations were hampered by loose rocks, some several feet in diameter, around the top of the crevasse. Workers feared that the slightest nudge might send the rocks crashing down onto the injured boy.

The crevasse where he fell is about half a mile from the opening of the cave. Workers had to inch their way across another deep pit to reach the scene.

Ever body wants a seat in the UN, then kin hardly wait t' stand up and talk.

They c'd internationalize Berlin by havin' th' World Series there.

If this weather keeps up, there's goin' t' be quite a rush t' hev summer holidays in October.

Nasser 'Octopus' Blamed by Syria

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — President Nasser's agents moved "like an octopus" to weaken the Syrian army, suffocate freedom of citizens and to fill prisons," says the new Syrian army commander.

Gen. Abdel Karim Zahredin told reporters Tuesday that was the reason the Syrian army rose against Nasser's United Arab Republic last week and forcibly severed Syria's 3½-year-old ties with Egypt.

Zahredin also accused Cairo agents of stealing millions of pounds worth of Syrian arms and equipment for shipment to Egypt.

FILLED PRISONS

He said Nasser's intelligence officers filled Syria's prisons with political prisoners and stifled individual liberties.

The army's only aim was to redress wrongs and it was pledged not to interfere with the political life of Syria," he said.

Informed sources said that one way Nasser weakened the Syrian army was to send several dozen Syrian officers to Communist countries as students. They said the action was aimed at preventing such an uprising as that which occurred and that Syria now demanded their prompt return.

CAPTURE PRISONERS

Interior Minister Adnan Kuwaty told newspapermen the new Syrian regime had found a large number of political prisoners but had been unable to come up with an accurate count. Premier Maoun Kuzbari estimated the number at about 30,000 Tuesday.

Kuwaty said the dreaded internal security system at one time had about 6,500 secret agents with a monthly payroll of about £1,000,000 Syrian ($2,800,000).

Syria will continue its ban on the Communist party, Kuwaty said, adding that "we will leave the question of political parties to Parliament."

Business Tide Turns as Victoria Economy Swings Upward

Times Business Editor

After more than two years of economic slackness, the Victoria-area this fall shows strong signs of having "turned the corner" and to be entering a period of good business recovery, a survey of business and industry leaders showed today.

Among the signs which indicate a more prosperous year ahead:

• The latest National Employment Service report, issued today, shows that at Sept. 29 there were 3,142 persons seeking employment through the NES in the Victoria employment area. This is the lowest figure since Sept. 10, 1958, when there were 3,133 registered and contrasts with the peak registration of 6,032 last Jan. 19.

• Most retail stores report a strong pickup in business. The city's two leading department stores were literally "mobbed" by customers during recent sales.

• Initial sales of new model cars have been the highest in several years. Several dealers expect to have trouble supplying the demand and they report there is "no quibbling on prices." Sales manager of a major car dealer stated that for the first time in several years it's "a buying public rather than a haggling public."

The surge of consumer confidence seems to be based on several factors.

For one thing, a record-breaking tourist season has pumped many millions of extra dollars into the economy. William Hawkins, Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau commissioner, estimates "most conservatively" that tourists spent at least $45 million this year — up about 20 per cent.

This figure is based on a flow of 1,000,000 tourists with a three-day stay period and spending $15 a day. Mr. Hawkins personally believes that the per-day spending is much higher, but even using the conservative figure it's a big boost for the economy.

Next year Victoria and the Island generally must be braced to accommodate at least 500,000 extra tourists drawn from the Seattle Century 21 Exposition, Mr. Hawkins says.

This will pump at least another $22 million into the Victoria area and the effect of this is already being felt in heavier spending by tourist industry people preparing for the onslaught.

Another strong economic confidence factor has been the announcement of many millions of dollars worth of construction projects, ranging from huge apartments to a giant shopping centre complex, which will bolster the construction industry for many months to come.

Other local industries, many of them small but important in the aggregate, expect to maintain a high employment level this winter.

Of considerable importance in the industrial field is an announcement from John Wallace, general manager of Yarrow's Ltd., that employment in shipbuilding, repairs and industrial work will be maintained at about 550 men over the next 18 months.

This is about 200 men more than the employment average over the past two years," Mr. Wallace said.

Work on hand at Yarrow's includes a destroyer escort, a $1,800,000 fisheries research vessel and three $100,000 chip barges along with industrial and ship repair work.

In addition tenders are expected soon for four Department of Transport vessels — two for coast guard work and two weather ships. Yarrow's hopes to be successful in bidding on some of this work.

At Victoria Machinery Depot the winter employment picture is not so good, according to president Harold Husband. When the new government ferry Mv, Victoria is delivered in February, ship construction at VMD will be at an end and there is nothing in sight immediately.

However, Mr. Husband said, the firm is actively seeking jobs for its new $1,800,000 industrial division installation and there is some hope there.

VMD will also be tendering on the four DOT vessels. Mr. Husband said, "but there is not much chance that any actual construction will get underway on them before next June."

MONTE ROBERTS

Mayor Percy B. Scurrah,
City Hall,
Victoria, B.C.
Dear Mr. Mayor, Sir:

I see where you are having a bit of a hassle with the census enumerators about the case of the missing citizens.

The census enumerators say Greater Victoria has grown by 17,000 persons in five years, but Victoria itself (Lesser Victoria?) has shrunk by 700 in population.

You, Mr. Mayor, Sir, say this can't be so.

And, as a loyal admirer of this, the Fairest City of Them All, I agree with you.

Nobody in his right census would believe a reduction in population in this beautiful, beautiful burgh.

But we must be fair with the head counters, Mr. Mayor, Sir. I don't believe they set out deliberately to downgrade Victoria.

The first possible explanation which slipped into my mind was that on the day the head counters came around, 1,400 people were of half a mind not to answer the questions, thus reducing the overall figure by 700.

On the other hand, it is entirely possible that at least 700 people were out to lunch when the census man called.

Being out to lunch is one of Victoria's most popular pastimes, and I have noticed a tendency on the part of a great many business men to go out to lunch from 12 noon Tuesday to 10 a.m. Wednesday.

Another explanation might be, 700 people had gone fishing. This is a most wonderful place to go fishing, as there is very rarely any danger of being bothered by catching a fish.

(The danger of catching a fish, and having to yard it in, however slight it might be, is the reason I don't go fishing.)

The next explanation I considered was that the 700 missing citizens were out in the garden, admiring their compost heaps when the census was being taken.

Victoria is the city of gardens, Mr. Mayor, Sir, and the proud possessor of the biggest compost heaps in the world. It would be very easy to misplace 700 odd citizens hidden behind their compost heaps.

But I don't think any of these is the true explanation, Mr. Mayor, Sir.

I think this is what happened in at least 700 cases:

The census man asked, "where do you live?"

And the respondent, gazing dreamily out his window, across his charming garden, at the cloud-whipped sky hanging over the blue sea—feeling the soft zephyr of a banana-breeze—would reply:

"I live in Paradise."

Naturally, being in full agreement with this sentiment, the census man wrote down "Place of residence—Paradise," and there you are.

LIFE STRUGGLE No Childhood For Children Of Jordan

The tattered children of Jordan have never seen a toy and in the true sense they have no childhood.

"The people are too busy struggling to live to provide fun and games for their youngsters," says Sybil Conery, executive secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Save the Children Fund who has just completed a tour of Middle East refugee camps.

Visiting Victoria today, Miss Conery revealed there are still a million Arab refugees in Jordan, Syria, Lebanon and Gaza.

"The people of southern Jordan live much as they did when Christ was on earth," she said. "I was horrified by all the hunger, the poverty and the tattered clothing they wear."

"In all my travels I saw only one toy—a dirty old doll—and a line of children were waiting their turn to hold it."

"The tragic thing is that the population of Jordan is increasing by 30,000 children every year."

HALLOWEEN HELP

Miss Conery stated that the money collected by B.C. children—like the $20,000 they collected last Halloween for the Save the Children Fund—goes to help the children of destitute people.

In Jordan she asked officials whether Canadian youngsters should send toys to the children. She was told that, while toys are desirable, the need for food, clothing and medical supplies is much greater and must be given priority.

Doctors, nurses and other Save the Children Fund workers use tents, hovels and caves, particularly among the nomadic Bedouins.

"About 65 per cent of the children are suffering from TB in various stages," Miss Conery said. "There is no problem getting them to want to go to school—they all want to go. But, alas, there are hardly any schools."

STRIKING CONTRAST

"There is a striking contrast between the rich and poor. While thousands are living in direst poverty, some of the local sheikhs have Cadillacs parked outside their tents." Miss Conery did most of her travel in Jordan and Gaza on horseback, because there are few roads and little transportation.

Ross Receives Commission At Ceremony

Frank M. Ross, former lieutenant-governor of the province, will be presented with his commission as honorary colonel of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) tonight at the Bay Street Armoury.

At the ceremony which will take place in the Officers' Mess at 8:30 p.m., Mr. Ross will meet all serving members of the regiment.

Before the presentation, he will be honored at a dinner to be held in the Union Club.

The previous honorary colonel of the regiment, Hon. R. W. Mayhew, retired in 1959.

ARCHIE WILLS
... offered post.

Ex-Alderman Heads Up Centenary

Archie Wills, former alderman and newspaperman, has been appointed to take charge of organizing Victoria's 1962 centennial celebrations. Mayor Percy Scurrah announced today.

The mayor also revealed that centennial planning will shift emphasis to the historical aspects of the event.

"Mr. Wills, who has a great and intimate knowledge of the city's history, has agreed to take over, at least until things are whipped into shape," Mayor Scurrah said.

APPLICATIONS

"He will co-ordinate all the planning work of the various sub-committees appointed to arrange specific programs."

Thirteen applications were screened by the city personnel office for the $400-a-month post-vacated suddenly by William Dow—both none of them were found suitable.

"Mr. Wills has agreed to take over at our request, although he did not apply for the post," said the mayor.

A native Victorian, Mr. Wills worked with The Daily Times from 1907 to his retirement in 1951 as managing editor.

As an alderman for 10 consecutive years, he led the polls from 1935 to 1944 and served as police commissioner in 1938 and 1939.

'Impaired Boating' Brings $250 Fine

An Oak Bay boatowner was fined $250 and prohibited from operating any craft in Canada for six months when he pleaded guilty in police court today to a seldom heard charge of impaired-boat driving.

Oak Bay police arrested Horace J. Sims, 2620 Currie, and another occupant of his boat, Herbert Sinnott, 559 Paradise, after a dramatic hour-long episode off the Harling Point waterfront Tuesday night.

The 36-foot semi-enclosed launch Water Tourist had been cruising at half-speed in tight circles—in reverse—defying attempts of other boatmen to board her while Sims and Sinnott lay sleeping on the craft's floorboards, out of sight from shore.

Police from Oak Bay and Victoria watched from the shore, helplessly as efforts to

Siren's Warning Volume Feared

City Officials Wait Decision at Ottawa

Installation of new air raid sirens in Victoria is expected to bring a muted wail of anguish from citizens.

Civic officials sounded the "alert" today as the federal government called for tenders for installation of new units here and on the lower mainland.

They're watching to see what kind of sirens are installed.

The fear is that Ottawa will erect the half-ton, 10-horsepower mechanical brutes which City Hall fought to a standstill 18 months ago as "ungainly and unsightly"—the words used by Mayor Percy Scurrah as chairman of the Civil Defence Control Board.

DEAFENING

He said they would require special large towers to mount and would deafen nearby residents.

Mayor Scurrah proposed that small, electronic units should be substituted.

He said the electronic sirens would be unobtrusive, could be operated by either battery or electric power and also could be used as loudspeakers to help prevent panic.

No more was heard about the mechanical sirens—nine

Rains Wash Out Northern Bridges

Heavy rains have washed out two bridges on Highway 16 west of Terrace, the Department of Highways said today.

Few details were available here, but a spokesman said it is believed the bridges were small, wooden structures. The highway between Terrace and Prince Rupert was temporarily closed.

One of the bridges was seven miles west of Terrace and the other was at Scree Creek, nine miles west of the Bulkley Valley city.

Noted Historian Dies After Fall

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Major Frederick V. Longstaff, well-known naval historian and authority on the history of Victoria and Esquimalt, died in Royal Jubilee Hospital early today.

He was 83 and underwent an operation Tuesday after a fall at his home last week in which he suffered a fractured hip.

Major Longstaff lived in a spacious, dignified home at 50 King George Terrace where he kept a remarkable collection of photos and records of early British Columbia, including the old Cariboo Highway.

An Imperial Army veteran, he came to Victoria from England in 1911 and was active in many phases of community life.

'GREAT LOSS'

"His death is a great loss to Victoria," said Miss E. Gilliland, his housekeeper for the past 18 years. "He was a most knowledgeable man, a scholar in the best sense."

Funeral services at Christ Church Cathedral Saturday.

Major Longstaff was also a life member of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans' Association, which he joined in 1917, and a life member of Oak Bay Progressive Conservative Association.

CHURCH DESIGN

He was a prominent member of Christ Church Cathedral and, as a trained architect, assisted in the design of St. John's Anglican Church and the James Bay Anglican Hall.

Born in Surrey, England, Major Longstaff took part in two federal election campaigns before he came to live in Victoria.

"We are indebted to him for his keen interest and constructive advice at all times," a spokesman for the Maritime Museum said today. "His death is a great loss to the city."

TOPICS OF THE DAY

The Victoria-West Lawn Bowling Club has resumed its weekly card games of 500 to be held in the clubhouse on Esquimalt Road on Tuesdays at 8 p.m. Visitors are welcome.

Captain William K. Stirling of Winnipeg and Victoria has been promoted to the rank of major. An officer of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, Major Stirling will continue to serve at the Work Point garrison as a company commander.

HMCS Malahat will be visited Oct. 10 by reserve navy chief of staff Capt. J. C. Little. Later this month the Wharf Street reserve establishment's personnel will be given annual inspection by Commodore Paul Taylor, commanding officer of naval divisions.

Garden City United Church will hold its annual turkey dinner in the church hall next Monday, Thanksgiving Day. There will be two sittings, at 12:30 and 6 p.m.

ASK THE TIMES

Q.—Would you please tell us the exact amount of military personnel recorded killed in the bombing of Pearl Harbor?—M.E. and P.V.

A.—An exact compilation of casualties in time of war is almost impossible to make. Estimates of the military casualties at Pearl Harbour vary from 2,330 killed and 1,145 wounded to 2,898 killed and 879 wounded. The latest book on the Second World War gives the figure of 2,343 killed and 1,272 wounded.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with one of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. No will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Thefts totalling $300.00 at noon Tuesday were reported to city police at a downtown cafe and a private club.

While Eagles Club secretary S. E. Hills was out to lunch, someone entered his office at 751 View and took $215.00, mostly cash, when they pried open a cash drawer.

At Chris' Coffee Shop, Cook Street, someone ripped a change purse from a larger purse, property of employee Mrs. Stella Rhodes, 2003 Cameron, and made off with $85.

A former Victoria man already facing an Assize Court trial in connection with an alleged real estate fraud heard three more charges involving $9,500 in city police court today.

John Blair was on $2,000 cash bail to appear Oct. 16 in Assize Court.

He appeared in city police court and was remanded to next Wednesday for election on the additional charges, and bail meanwhile is set at $1,000, in addition to the former bond.

The John Stubbs Memorial School PTA will meet in the school auditorium on Tuesday at 8:00 p.m.

Dr. David Chabassol of Victoria University will speak on "Some of the Characteristic Problems of Adolescence."

Six Vancouver Island high school graduates are among 37 new officer cadets enrolled in HMCS Venture, the RCN junior officer training establishment at Esquimalt.

The school, open to students having a junior matriculation standing, is designed primarily to provide naval aviators for the fleet.

The six Vancouver Islanders selected were Victorians, Charles Davis, 2275 Oak Bay Avenue; Norman Rhode, 502 Goldstream Avenue; Richard Taschirer, 1126 Esquimalt Road; Melvin Spotswood, 285 Helmcken Road; and Peter Jubb, 27 Government Street; and Thomas Rutherford of Campbell River.

A Guide captain to lead the company of the Madrona Division, Cadboro Bay, is urgently needed. There is a lieutenant to assist. Meetings are held on Wednesdays at St. George the Martyr Parish Hall.

For further information, phone the Area Commissioner, Mrs. Bernard Shaw, EV 29709.

The New Imperial Social Club will hold a dance in the Newstead Hall, 734 Fort Street, next Saturday at 9 p.m. A general meeting will be held there at 8:15 p.m.

Members and wives of the Canadian National Veterans' Association will meet at the Knights of Pythias Hall, Cormorant Street, on Friday at 2 p.m. Dr. Clifford Carl of the Provincial Museum will be the guest speaker.

Two men were fined $250 each when they pleaded guilty in city police court today to charges of impaired driving Tuesday night.

W. Burton, Oliver Street, was checked after he drove through a red light at Fort and went up to 50 miles an hour on Oak Bay Avenue.

Frederick Etherington, Victoria, was in a rear-end collision at Hillside and Blanshard with a car driven by Bert Binney, 3380 Veteran.

Magistrate William Ostler suspended driver's licences of both accused.

UNITED APPEAL CAMPAIGN

Faculty Hears Facts of Combined Drive

The United Appeal helps more people in Greater Victoria than all others combined, campaign chairman Justin Harbord told faculty members of Victoria College Tuesday.

"And it does so at less expense than any other appeal," he said. "Unlike all others, it accepts not only the responsibility of raising the money—but also, through budget controls, it sees that this money is spent wisely in the overall community interest.

"Our problem this year is the same problem as last year, and every year since the formation of Community Chest—and that is to persuade the people of this city to think of this as, not one appeal, but 22 appeals combined in one."

Mr. Harbord said some of the many criticisms of the Community Chest and the United Appeal are simply "excuses given by members of the Pocketbook-Protective League and need not be answered."

"Others, of course, come from perfectly sincere people who do not possess the facts, or have insufficient information."

"Most common criticisms are directed towards the YMCA and the Boy Scouts, two agencies which do a truly tremendous job with the youth of this community."

Persecution Might Develop Culture

By LES MILLIN
Times College Correspondent

A century of persecution might be the making of Canada, culturally.

Canada has a culture, not necessarily artistic or literary, and it consists of being a Canadian.

Victory Seen For Gaitskell

BLACKPOOL, England (CP)—Britain's Labor party Tuesday showed signs of pulling itself together after years of argument over the nationalization issue.

The Labor party conference approved for the first time a document that does not call for outright nationalization of all important industries. By doing this, the majority of the delegates finally accepted the fact that private enterprise has an important role to play in a socialist society.

DR. J. D. PETER
South African now attached to

No country ever got a culture by determining to get one. These are some of the views of Dr. John D. Peter, a former South African now attached to Victoria College's department of English.

An associate professor, he is the author of two scholarly works, one on Milton and one on the Renaissance. In Victoria, he plans to write fiction.

"The prospective view of culture," he says, "is all wrong. No country gets one by saying, 'all right, as of this morning we'll have culture.'"

"You can't buy culture, you see. Giving a writer or an artist enough money to live on for a year, so that he will be free to write or paint is fine as long as the writer is the kind who will work under those conditions. But you have to expect to make some mistakes."

"A century of persecution might be just the thing to get Canadian artists and writers moving. It would give them what they need—something of immediate concern. For the last 20 years, English-speaking South Africans have become progressively uneasy about their environment, and this has done a great deal to improve the literature of the country. It has supplied a passionate concern over injustice. "Canada has a culture. It is not necessarily literary or artistic. It consists of being a Canadian."

500,000-Volt Line To Undergo Tests

PORTLAND (AP)—A transmission line that will handle up to 500,000 volts of electric power is being installed experimentally by Bonneville Power Administration in one of its 345,000-volt lines near Sandy, Ore.

Administrator Charles F. Luce said it was the first of its size west of the Rockies. Highest voltage present regional lines will carry is 345,000, he said.

'Protect Buyers Of Drugs'

MONTREAL (CP)—A brief urging that a government-published pamphlet on drugs be made available to the public was presented Monday at the restrictive trade practices commission's inquiry into drug prices.

Mrs. E. B. Sims, president of a Quebec branch of the Canadian Association of Consumers, said fields where buying is done in "haste and fear" need extra protection.

A pamphlet would fill a gap in the public's knowledge of drugs and enable it to save money by ordering drugs by generic name rather than brand name.

Baby Sitter Shot to Death

WALLA WALLA (AP)—Sally Jean Marsh, 19, a baby sitter, was found shot to death today in the apartment of a man for whose family she had worked.

Chester Lee Whiteley, 23, restaurant fry cook who called authorities, was held for investigation of homicide, Police Chief A. L. Watts said.

Ex-Featherweight Champ Suspended

LONDON (AP)—Terry Spinks, former British featherweight boxing champion, was suspended today for a year for failing to make the weight against Paddy Read of Providence, R.I., in London Sept. 5. Spinks twice previously had been overweight for fights.

Gambling Squad Head Suspended

VANCOUVER (CP)—The head of the city police gambling squad was identified today as one of two policemen suspended pending investigation of a charge against them.

A notice in police bulletins named Detective Sergeant Donald McDonald as being suspended without pay effective Sept. 29. It said Detective N. G. P. Walker, a member of the gambling squad, also has been suspended.

City prosecutor Stewart McMorran is studying the case.

Shipboard Firing for Polaris

CAPE CANAVERAL (AP)—An advanced A2 model Polaris missile scooted more than 1,500 miles today after a successful shipboard launching that paves the way for initial firings from a submarine.

Compressed air shot the compact solid-fuel missile from a vertical tube in the deck of the United States Navy vessel Observation Island as the ship cruised in the Atlantic Ocean about 40 miles southeast of here.

Death Penalty Asked for Cubans

HAVANA (UPI)—The Fidel Castro regime asked the death penalty today for two more alleged counter-revolutionaries, giving new impetus to the recent one-day pace of firing squad executions in Cuba.

Shuts Out Reds
On 2-Hit Stand

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stubby Whitey Ford's record-setting pitching and the most thunderous home-run bats in baseball history swept the New York Yankees to a 2-0 triumph over the Cincinnati Reds in the opening game of the World Series today.

The bludgeons which bashed an all-time high of 240 home runs this year roared the Yankee victory tune when Elston Howard clipped a fourth-inning clout into the lower right-field stands and Moose Skowron lofted a towering shot into the left-field stands in the sixth inning.

Ford, the ice water blond with an eye on the record books, took care of the Reds with a two-hit shutout—his third consecutive scoreless effort in World Series play and his unprecedented eighth win in the classic.

The Yankees did it without ailing Mickey Mantle as they hung the defeat on handsome young Jim O'Toole, although he handcuffed home run king Roger Maris before retiring for a pinch-hitter after giving up six hits and two runs in seven innings.

It was a heart-breaking defeat for the Reds, whose scorned defence contributed two sparkling plays; but on this chill gray day they simply were unable to match that Yankee power and the south-paw slants of the chunky Ford before a crowd of 62,397 fans. And it was Ford's day all the way, even the weather conspiring to help the heat-hating

... record-smasher

32-year-old who compiled his greatest record this season with 25 victories. For when it was over Whitey had: —Become the first man to win eight series games, leaving behind him former Yankee greats Red Ruffing and Allie Reynolds—each with seven. —Run his record of all-time series strikeouts to 69 by fanning six of the Reds. —In pitching his third consecutive shutout. TODAY'S OPENING GAME of World Series was highlighted by some sparkling infield play. Yankees' Cletis Boyer goes to his knees to block Gene Freese's sharp grounder and throw him out in third inning. In the eighth Boyer again went down to stop Gernert's smash and make the throw to first while still on the ground. Boyer's play drew praise from manager Ralph Houk. (AP Wirephoto.)

NO. 17 BY RUSSIANS
'SEVERAL MEGATONS'

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Soviet Union fired a big nuclear explosion today, described by the United States Atomic Energy Commission as "on the order of several megatons."

A megaton is the equivalent of 1,000,000 tons of TNT.

This was the 17th atomic explosion by the Soviet Union since they resumed testing Sept. 1.

Collapse of UN
Predicted If Red China Seated

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Nationalist China warned today that the United Nations will be wrecked if it bows to demands of "international bullies" and admits countries disqualified by the spirit and letter of the UN charter.

The warning came from Foreign Minister Shen Changhuan, who told the 100-nation General Assembly "appeasement is very much in the air." He did not mention Red China specifically, but the question of seating Red China is in the agenda for debate later in the current session.

As in other recent assembly sessions, all delegates of the Soviet bloc countries left the chamber during the speech of the Nationalist Chinese official.

Shen repeated Nationalist China's promise to liberate the Chinese mainland "if the opportunity presents itself." The Chiang Kai-shek government now rules only Formosa. Shen asserted the UN is "in danger of being perverted to serve the interest of powerful war-makers and international bullies."

There are delegations in this assembly," he said, "who are bent on strengthening the forces of evil by adding to United Nations membership those who are clearly not qualified by the spirit and letter of the charter... if they are allowed to have their way, then the era of collective aggression."

RCMP STUDIES REPORT FROM KAMLOOPS

Driving Charge No. 6 for Gaglardi

Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi has been charged for the sixth time with a traffic offence.

But top RCMP officials would not say anything about it today.

They are to decide if the charge will be pressed, or dropped. An official of the Attorney-General's department confirmed that a charge of driving without due care and attention was laid by a Kamloops RCMP constable last Friday.

Mr. Gaglardi has been convicted of five traffic offences since 1957.

If convicted again his licence could be suspended.

A report on the case is being sent from Kamloops RCMP division to B.C. headquarters in Victoria.

The alleged offence occurred on the Trans-Canada Highway Friday near Savona, 26 miles from Kamloops, Mr. Gaglardi's home town.

Superintendent J. B. Harris of the Kamloops division confirmed today "We have been making a follow-up investigation of the thing."

He would give no details. Assistant Commissioner Douglas Forrest, RCMP chief in B.C., would not say one word about the case.

"I'll decline to comment," he said. Asked when he would comment, he said, "I doubt before Friday."

He would not say why he was waiting until Friday. Superintendent F. S. Spalding of the Victoria detachment said he was awaiting the Kamloops report. He said he might be able to make a statement Thursday.

The official in the Attorney-General's department, however, said the department had been notified of the charge as a matter of courtesy.

But there had been no RCMP request for guidance on proceeding with it. If there is

'All I Wanted
To Do Was Win'BY TED SMITS
NEW YORK (AP)—This is the year for the attack on the records of the mighty Babe Ruth. But the man who threatened the Babe today did it with his stout left arm and not with his bat.

Whitey Ford, ace of the New York Yankee pitching staff, spun his third consecutive World Series shutout which adds up to 27 scoreless innings—and in the words of manager Ralph Houk it "was as nice a one as he has pitched all year."

"I did it with a sinker, a fast ball, a slider, and some curves," Ford said. "I didn't have a good change of pace." Ruth's record, back when he pitched for Boston Red Sox in the 1916 and 1918 World Series, is 29.23 scoreless innings. Ford will get a solid chance to beat this when the series moves to Cincinnati this weekend.

Roger Maris, who came within one home run of breaking Ruth's 154-game record total of 60, but wound up with 61 in the American League's expanded 162-game schedule, went hitless in four at bats. FORD THEIR HERO But Ford, all grins and his blond hair centred from sweat, was the centre of attraction in the Yankees' dressing room.

"Someone told me about Ruth's pitching record before the game," he said. "But it wasn't on my mind. All I wanted to do was win."

Off in the office, where once the gravel-voiced Casey Stengel held forth in fractured English, Houk leaned back with a broad grin on his face, puffed a cigar, and gave out rounded, grammatical sentences.

"It's always good to win the first one," he said. "Ford's the guy who did it, and of course those homers by Moose Skowron and Elston Howard helped. "And you'd have to say Clete Boyer played a lot of third. That was a heck of a play he made on Dick Gernert in the eighth."

ON EAST GERMAN TREATY

Ease-Up Hint By Russians

LONDON (UPI)—Communist diplomats hinted today that Russia might postpone the signing of its threatened separate peace with East Germany if the West agreed to negotiate a speedy Berlin settlement.

Russia still intends to sign such a peace treaty, but the move could be deferred if negotiations for a Berlin accord were held soon and not dragged out indefinitely.

Or, they said, Moscow might sign the treaty this year as threatened with the understanding that it would be amended to include agreement on Berlin.

Such an understanding would be conditional on an East-West accord to start full-dress negotiations soon.

SECOND THOUGHTS

These vague hints were an indication that Moscow might not stick to its December deadline for a treaty with the East German regime, western diplomatic sources said.

The final decision probably would be determined by whether or not the next few weeks produce an East-West understanding to negotiate the Berlin conflict.

But in no case does Moscow appear willing to defer the signature of the projected treaty for more than a few months. The Russians appeared determined to keep any negotiations short; but continuance of any such talks into 1962 seemed to be acceptable in principle, judging by the hints here today.

Premier Nikita Khrushchev intends to announce to the Moscow Party Congress opening Oct. 17 the outcome of the current East-West exploratory effort and a possible date for negotiations if agreement is reached in time, the sources hinted.

No indication was given, however, that Russia was prepared to modify its stand on the Berlin issue.

Nasser 'Octopus' Blamed by Syria

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—President Nasser's agents moved "like an octopus" to weaken the Syrian army, suffocate freedom of citizens and to fill prisons, says the new Syrian army commander.

Gen. Abdel Karim Zahredin told reporters Tuesday that was the reason the Syrian army rose against Nasser's United Arab Republic last week and forcibly severed Syria's 3½-year-old ties with Egypt.

FILLED PRISONS

He said Nasser's intelligence officers filled Syria's prisons with political prisoners and stifled individual liberties.

The army's only aim was to redress wrongs and it was pledged not to interfere with the political life of Syria, he said.

Informed sources said that one way Nasser weakened the Syrian army was to send several dozen Syrian officers to Communist countries as students. They said the action was aimed at preventing such an uprising as that which occurred and that Syria now has demanded their prompt return.

CAUTION PRISONERS

Interior Minister Adnan Kuwaty told newspapermen the new Syrian regime had found a large number of political prisoners but had been unable to come up with an accurate count. Premier Maunou Kuzbari estimated the number at about 30,000 Tuesday.

Kuwaty said the dreaded internal security system at one time had about 5,500 secret agents with a monthly payroll of about $1,000,000 Syrian ($2,800,000).

Syria will continue its ban on the Communist party, Kuwaty said, adding that "we will leave the question of political parties to Parliament."

Peace Talks May Crumble

ELISABETHVILLE (UPI)—The crisis in the Congo headed for another climax today after Katanga and United Nations officials traded charges of trickery and a doublecross.

Unconfirmed reports said Katanga President Moise Tshombe had broken off peace talks with the United Nations. The talks were started to firm up the Katanga cease-fire both sides signed on Sept. 21.

Dr. Conor C. O'Brien, civilian

U.N. chief here, charged Tuesday night that Tshombe had tricked the United Nations into showing all its military fortifications in Katanga.

Tshombe in turn accused the United Nations of breaking the cease-fire Sept. 24 when it captured 143 Katanga soldiers at the provincial rail centre of Nyunzu.

The first locomotive in Upper Canada made its initial run in 1832.

Cincinnati: Hall of famer Joe DiMaggio threw out the first ball. Blasingame struck out. Kasko looped a single to left. Pinson chased Maris back to deep center with his long drive. Robinson struck out swinging. No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

New York: Richardson singled to centre. Kubek walked. O'Toole's first pitch to Maris was a ball and Cincinnati manager Fred Hutchinson talked to his pitcher. Maris popped to short left, the runners holding. Howard fled to Pinson, the runners holding. Skowron walked, filling the bases. Berra swung at a 3-2 pitch and raised a pop-up to Blasingame on the edge of the outfield grass. No runs, one hit, no errors, three left.

SECOND INNING

Cincinnati: The lights were turned on as the Reds came to bat. Boyer threw out Post. Boyer made a brilliant stop of Freese's hard smash and recovered in time to throw him out. Coleman was tossed out by Ford. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

New York: Lopez fled to Post. Boyer popped to Freese. Blasingame tossed out Ford. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

THIRD INNING

Cincinnati: Boyer threw out Johnson. O'Toole was called out on strikes. Blasingame became Ford's fourth strikeout victim. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

New York: Richardson singled on a high hopper to deep short. Kubek popped to Kasko. Maris struck out on a low pitch, and Richardson was doubled up on an apparent hit-and-run. Richardson started for second, but headed back to first when Johnson fired to Kasko. The shortstop's throw to Coleman cut down Richardson. No runs, one hit, no errors, none left.

FOURTH INNING

Cincinnati: Kubek threw out Kasko. Pinson bounced out. Richardson to Skowron. Robinson struck out for the second time. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

New York: Howard hit a home run into the lower right field stands. It was his fifth world series homer and put the Yankees ahead 2-0. Kasko threw out Skowron from deep short. Berra walked on four pitches. Lopez was called out on strikes. Boyer singled. Berra stopping at second. Kasko made a leaping catch of Ford's low liner to his right. One run, two hits, no errors, two left.

FIFTH INNING

Cincinnati: Post singled. Freese fled to Berra. Richardson threw out Coleman on a close play. Post going to second. Boyer fielded Johnson's roller and tagged Post on the base line. Post sent Boyer half sprawling but the third baseman held on to the ball. No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

New York: Coleman fielded Richardson's drag-bunt and tagged out the runner. Kubek fled to Pinson. Maris bounced out to Coleman unassisted. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

SIXTH INNING

Cincinnati: O'Toole fled to Maris. Richardson appeared Blasingame's bouncer and threw him out. Richardson also threw out Kasko. Ford now has a string of 24 consecutive scoreless innings in World Series competition. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

New York: Howard lined to Pinson in deep centre. Skowron hit a 400-foot home run into the lower left field stands, to put the Yankees ahead 2-0. It was Skowron's seventh World Series homer. Berra fled to Blasingame. Lopez walked. Boyer sent a towering drive to Pinson. One run, one hit, no errors, one left.

SEVENTH INNING

Cincinnati: Pinson popped to Skowron. Robinson walked, the first walk issued to Ford. Post forced Robinson. Boyer to Richardson, who tagged the sliding runner. Freese raised a pop-up to Kubek. No runs, no hits, no errors, one left.

New York: Blasingame tossed out Ford. Richardson got his third hit, a single to left. Kubek fled to Post. Maris fouled to Johnson. No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

EIGHTH INNING

Cincinnati: Kubek threw out Coleman. Cardenas batted for Johnson and struck out. Gernert batted for O'Toole. Boyer made a sensational diving stop of Gernert's hard smash and threw the runner out. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

New York: The attendance was 62,937. Jim Brosnan, a righthander, went in to pitch, and Zimmerman went behind the plate for the Reds. Kasko threw out Howard. Skowron struck out. Berra walked. Blanchard, a left-handed hitter, batted for Lopez and popped to Blasingame. No runs, no hits, no errors, one left.

NINTH INNING

Cincinnati: Jack Reed went to centrefield and Maris moved to right for the Yankees. Lynch batted for Blasingame and popped to Boyer. Kubek threw out Kasko. Pinson popped to Kubek. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

DAG HAMMARSKJOLD:

CUSTODIAN OF THE PEACE

By JOSEPH P. LASH
Chapter IX

On Aug. 1, 1960, the hurricane was first sighted. Chairman Khrushchev proposed that the heads-of-state personally participate in the disarmament debate of the Assembly session that was scheduled to open Sept. 20.

The 15th General Assembly, which opened on Sept. 20, was to be history's most raucous if not most productive diplomatic assembly. The cast of characters included the most powerful leaders of the Communist states except for Mao Tse-tung.

There were the neutralists Big Five—Nehru, Tito, Nasser, Nkrumah and Sukarno. With the neutralists turning up in such force, the leaders of the West, except for an immovable de Gaulle, overcoming their distaste for the huge propaganda circus, starting with Eisenhower and including Macmillan, Diefenbaker and Menzies put in an appearance.

Khrushchev turned the staid parliamentary traditions of the Assembly into a shambles,

Verbal Assault Pours Forth

For the first two hours the assault against the West poured forth for colonial repression, for dragging its heels on disarmament, for the U-2 affair.

Then he turned his guns on Hammarskjold. He had "sided with the colonialists" in the carrying out of the Security Council's decisions on the Congo.

This had ominous implications. There was increasing talk about a UN Force that would replace national armies after disarmament. But the way the UN Force had been misused in the Congo to serve the interest of only one group of states "puts us on our guard."

There was a new relationship of forces in the world. There were no longer two camps, as at the beginning of the UN, but three—the socialist, the capitalist and the neutralist.

The Soviet Government had come to the conclusion that "the post of the Secretary-General

'All Three Must Agree'

"All three secretaries must be agreed on a concerted decision," he emphasized to newsmen. "I don't know what you call it," he added puckishly.

He declared further that there could be no solution of the disarmament problem without reorganization of the Secretary-General's office on a tripartite basis.

When the session resumed, Hammarskjold asked Boland's permission to address the Assembly. In a voice totally devoid of dramatics, as if he were reading a lecture on international law, he made his reply.

The issue was not the man but the institution.

"Use whatever words you like, independence, impartiality, objectivity—they all describe essential aspects of what, without exception, must be the attitude of the Secretary-General."

"Such an attitude," he went on, "may at any stage become an obstacle for those who work for certain political

Question of Confidence

Khrushchev soon removed all ambiguity on the point. Exercising his "right of reply" the Soviet leader made it clear that he was raising a personal as well as a constitutional issue, and that there had been a major shift in Soviet policy toward the UN reflecting what the Soviet leaders assessed to be the new correlation of forces in the world.

The world situation had been radically altered since the founding of the UN, Khrushchev said. The UN structure was now "out of date." A billion people lived under "socialism." Another billion were to be found living in the neutralist states of Asia and Africa. Neither of these blocs was adequately represented in the organs of the UN, especially the Secretariat.

"Only one man" was the interpreter and executor of the decisions of the Council and Assembly, but there were no "saints on earth" capable of defending the interests of all three groups.

Institution Counts Over Man

The issue, he repeated, was not "of a man but of an institution. The man does not count, the institution does. A weak or non-existent executive would mean that the UN would no longer be able to serve as an effective instrument for active protection of the interests of those many members who need such protection. The man holding the responsibility as chief executive should leave if he weakens the executive; he should stay if this is necessary for its maintenance."

This alone should be the controlling consideration. Khrushchev had said the denouncing fellow delegates as "jerks", heckling whenever he was so minded, beating out disapproving tattoos on his desk with his fists, taking off a shoe and angrily brandishing it at a speaker.

"How did he feel about Hammarskjold?" a newsman shouted up to Khrushchev as he unexpectedly popped out of the balcony of the Soviet delegation offices on Park Avenue for an impromptu press conference.

"Just be patient," the shirt-sleeved Khrushchev shouted.

Khrushchev marched to the rostrum the next day, bowed to the president of the Assembly, put on his spectacles and began to speak. He had come to attack not to parley and to shock not to assuage.

eral who alone governs the staff and alone interprets and executes the decisions of the Security Council and sessions of the UN General Assembly should be abolished."

It should be replaced by "a collective executive body" of three who would represent the three camps—the military blocs of the Western powers, the Socialist states and the neutralist countries.

As he ended his speech, Khrushchev looked up at the Secretary-General seated on the high presidential rostrum behind him, and smiled. Hammarskjold looked straight ahead, his mild blue eyes glinting steel. The Soviet bloc delegates applauded wildly, the neutralists tepidly. Others looked grim.

Over the weekend, as he relaxed in Glen Cove, Khrushchev in an expansive mood, made it clear the triumvirate proposal was designed to give him a veto over the executive operations of the UN.

aim which would be better achieved if the Secretary-General compromised with this attitude. But if he did, how gravely he would then betray the trust of all those for whom the strict maintenance of such an attitude is their best protection in the world-wide fight for power and influence."

He would rather see the office of Secretary-General "break on strict adherence to the principles of independence, impartiality and objectivity than drift on the basis of compromise. That is the choice daily facing the Secretary-General."

As Hammarskjold ended this spirited but impersonally delivered defence of his office, an ovation swept the Assembly hall. It gathered force and Khrushchev began the first of his desk-pounding demonstrations.

Khrushchev's speech, Hammarskjold suggested, perhaps had even raised the "question of confidence."

"Is it not clear whose interests he interprets and executes, whose 'Saint' he is? Mr. Hammarskjold has always been biased with regard to the socialist countries, he has always upheld the interests of the U.S. and other countries of monopoly capital."

"To avoid misinterpretation, I want to reaffirm that we do not trust Mr. Hammarskjold and cannot trust him. If he himself does not muster up enough courage to resign, so to say, in a chivalrous manner, then we shall draw the necessary conclusions from the situation obtaining."

The Assembly Hall was crowded; the atmosphere electric with tension and all eyes riveted to Hammarskjold. Boland gave him the floor. Again the high-pitched, cool tones rang out. Where Khrushchev had stormed he understated. His appeal was to men "free of mind" and his faith that "only on a scrutiny of truth can a future of peace be built."

Soviet Union found it impossible to work with him.

"This may seem to provide a strong reason why I should resign."

However, the Soviet Union was also insisting that he should be replaced by a triumvirate which "would make it impossible to maintain an effective executive."

"By resigning, I would therefore, at the present difficult and dangerous juncture, throw the Organization to the winds. I have no right to do so."

World-Wide Orders Flowing In To Skilled Ladysmith Bow-Maker

LADYSMITH — Orders are being received here from all parts of the world for bows made by Art Williams, who has earned an international reputation as a skilled bowmaker and archer.

His bows are successfully competing with the best made by United States manufacturers.

The story of Mr. Williams' bows started four years ago when the Ladysmith archer made a few as a hobby. As his interest grew, he experimented with materials and discovered a new method.

Instead of using wood, he used a composite fibreglass-reinforced plastic material, with a specially-processed adhesive. The bows turned out to be lighter, yet stronger, than the ordinary bows.

Vancouver Island archers were the first to start using Mr. Williams' bows.

They gained in popularity when a Ladysmith archer, Tony Turner, won the Pacific archery championships for three successive years with a Williams bow.

Then this year, Art Williams won the championship at Libby, Montana.

Three other championships have been won this past year with Williams' bows—the Canadian, the British Empire and the International championships.

Now Mr. Williams is turning out bows day and night for archers from all parts of the world.

He hopes to persuade the B.C. government to follow the example of some other Canadian provinces in declaring a special hunting season for archers. Saskatchewan has a three-week season, and Alberta a one-week season, for archers only, before the opening of the regular hunting season.

WIRE BRIEFS

New Ford Parley

DETROIT (AP) — United Auto Workers' President Walter Reuther met with top Ford Motor Company negotiators today in an effort to hammer out settlement of a strike that has shut down Ford plants across the United States.

Moslem Named

PARIS (AP) — A Moslem officer today was named commander of infantry forces in Algeria—the bulk of which are French troops.

Labor Backs West

BLACKPOOL, England (CP) — The opposition Labor party today dropped its anti-H-bomb defence policy and lined up in support of a Western nuclear deterrent. (See earlier, Page 23.)

E. Germans Squeezed

BERLIN (UPI) — The Communist Party today told East Germans they would have to tighten their belts still more to pay the cost of defence preparations.

It announced another postponement of the plan to catch up with West Germany's standard of living.

Mars Canals Made by Man?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A research chemist said today the canals of Mars are so like a man-made rail network and so unlike ordinary geological cracks they raise the possibility the planet may be inhabited.

The chemist, Wells Alan Webb of Berkeley, Calif., said that because the canals raise the possibility of a prior civilization, any attempt to send manned expeditions to Mars should be preceded by unmanned probes that could "probe a reaction" and detect any form of intelligent life that may exist.

Train Kills Elephant

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — A train knocked down and killed a three-ton elephant after she ran wild at a local circus and dashed onto railway tracks Tuesday night.

The locomotive was slightly damaged.

'IT'S A-OKAY'—THIS TIME!

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Astronaut Gus Grissom was stopped by policeman Elliott Davis, who said Grissom was driving 45 miles an hour in a 40 m.p.h. zone.

"I'm terribly sorry, officer. I don't usually go this fast," said the man who travelled 5,280 m.p.h. in a rocket.

The patrolman then took a closer look at Grissom's smiling companion. It was Alan Shepard Jr., the first U.S. space traveller.

Community Group Fined

CHEMUNUS — Pleading guilty to a charge of operating an illegal lottery, the Chemunus Community Centre Association was fined $250 in Ladysmith court Tuesday.

The lottery was for a boat. A. I. MacDonald, counsel for the accused, said the lottery was not held for personal gain.

The fines were spent on the purchase of sports equipment for youths who use the community centre, he said.

Union Bay Land Trade Suggested

UNION BAY — Canadian Colliers Resources Ltd. has offered to exchange land for the site of the Union Bay Community Club Hall, and thus give the company the only piece of foreshore property it now does not own in the area.

A company spokesman said this move was no indication that a pulp mill would be built there, as has been suggested for several years, but that the company would be ready to build such a mill on short notice.

Injured Boy Lifted From Cave

RISING FAWN, Ga. (AP) — An injured teen-age boy was lifted by stretcher from a crevasse in a mountain cave today after lying semi-conscious about nine hours on a ledge about 50 feet below the cave's floor.

He was taken to hospital after rescue workers spent a grueling two hours getting him out of the narrow cave. His condition did not appear critical.

The boy, 15-year-old Ronnie Reese, was on a ledge halfway down a 100-foot crevasse where he fell shortly after dark Tuesday while exploring the cave with three other youths.

Rescue operations were hampered by loose rocks, some several feet in diameter, around the top of the crevasse. Workers feared that the slightest nudge might send the rocks crashing down onto the injured boy.

The crevasse where he fell is about half a mile from the opening of the cave. Workers had to inch their way across another deep pit to reach the scene.
